STEAMER GROSSER KURFUERST BEARING PORTION OF VOL-
TURNO'S RESCUED, NEARS
NEW YORK.

WIRE GRAPHIC REPORT

Wireless Dispatches Tell of Awful
Fire on Liner in Mid-Atlantic
Storm And of Efforts to Give Aid.

On board the North German Lloyd steamship Grosser Kurfuerst at sea by wireless telegraph to Cape Race, Oct. 12.—With 105 survivors on board from the steamship Volturmo, burned to the water's edge during a gale in mid-Atlantic and abandoned on Friday last, the Grosser Kurfuerst is approaching New York.

The passengers and crew of the Grosser Kurfuerst witnessed some thrilling scenes when their vessel—called by distress signals from the Volturmo—arrived in her vicinity.

We found the Volturmo burning fiercely and her crew and passengers helpless in the heavy seas. It was learned by wireless messages from the flaming vessel that the fire had been started by an explosion in the forward hold at seven o'clock on Thursday morning of the ship's time.

Explosion Kills Fifty.

On the arrival of the Grosser Kurfuerst the flames from the hold of the Volturmo were leaping 50 feet into the air through the hatchways. It was learned that 50 or more of the Volturmo's crew and stowage passengers had been killed by the explosion and the fire.

Six boats were lowered immediately afterward from the Volturmo's davits.

Three of them, empty boats, were smashed to pieces against the vessel's side. One boat with forty passengers on board capsized while being lowered. The other two boats, one of which had twenty passengers on board, were lost in the mountainous seas. Altogether twelve liners were brought by the distress signals within half of the Volturmo.

Fight With Flames.

The sea was running too high to allow the taking off of the Volturmo's passengers when the rescuing vessels came for the rescue.

During the daytime the flames from the hold of the Volturmo were kept more or less under control, but about nine o'clock on Thursday night the fire reached the coal bunkers and it was found necessary to flood the bunkers. The burning thereupon was unable to work at full pressure and the flames broke out through the entire forward part of the vessel.

At twenty minutes to ten on Thursday night another explosion occurred in the Volturmo and caused a panic among her despairing passengers and crew.

Efforts to Rescue.

The Grosser Kurfuerst launched three boats and rescued thirty-two persons who had been washed into the sea. One of the rescuing life boats was out for six hours and was nearly lost.

All those remaining on board the Volturmo crowded together at the stern end of the vessel and were taken off safely after daybreak on Friday.

Second Officer Lloyd of the Volturmo was one of the heroes of the disaster. He fell from a height of twenty feet while repairing the wireless apparatus on board his vessel, but continued to fight the fire all day and at seven o'clock in the evening made a perilous trip to the Grosser Kurfuerst in a small boat with three others from the Volturmo. The little craft was sinking when she was picked up by one of the life boats from the Grosser Kurfuerst.

The total number of those saved is believed to be 102.

Await Rescue Ship.

None of the steamers which brought succor to the ill-fated Volturmo when she was burning in mid Atlantic arrived at its destination this morning, but a wireless report from the Cunard line steamer Carmania, which was the first to reach the scene of the disaster, told that she had passed Brown Head at 2:46 a. m. and expected to reach Fishguard at half past one this afternoon. All the other east bound vessels which played a part in the rescue of the Volturmo passengers are expected to reach port with survivors of the wreck today or tomorrow. The Carmania is due at Gravesend in the Thames at half past one o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Devonian at Liverpool and the Czar at Rotterdam tomorrow evening, while the Touraine may arrive at Havre this evening.

The Uranium line has made arrangements to send those survivors who desire to proceed to their destination in America on board other vessels as soon as possible.

UNDERWOOD REPLIES TO HOBSON'S ATTACK

HOBSON CHARGES THAT DEMO-CRATIC HOUSE LEADER WAS A TOOL OF WALL STREET.

LIVELY TILT IN HOUSE

Alabama Men Engage in Heated Personal Argument Which Ends Decidedly in Favor of Underwood.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Representative Hobson launched a hot attack against the senatorial campaign of democratic leader Underwood in the house today when he charged that his support of Underwood's presidential candidacy at the Baltimore convention was obtained under "false pretenses."

Hobson himself a candidate in the present Alabama contest, referred to printed reports of a recent speech in which he charged that Mr. Underwood was "the tool of Wall Street and the liquor interests," and read from the senate investigation of campaign contributions the testimony of Senator Bankhead containing the record of a contribution of $35,000 from Thomas F. Ryan and Bankhead's statement that Underwood had not known who financed his campaign.

"Had I known," shouted Hobson, "that Thomas Fortune Ryan, the man before the Baltimore convention and accused of being the tool of Wall Street, had financed the major portion of Underwood's campaign, I not only would have supported him, but I would have fought him and what is more he never would have been the choice of the people of Alabama. The support of the people of Alabama for Mr. Underwood, for president was secured under false pretenses and I here declare that their support of him for the United States senate shall not be obtained under similar false pretenses."

Underwood, on his feet, at once was loudly cheered by democrats and republicans as he was recognized. The majority leader first referred to Hobson's published speech and said he had been waiting to answer it "when he could look Mr. Hobson in the face."

Starts Lively Tilt.

"I would like the gentleman," Mr. Underwood continued turning toward Hobson, "to say here what he said in his Alabama speech and whether he charged me with being a tool of Wall Street and the liquor interest."

"I used the double word," replied Hobson, "in the testimony. I have just read here from a campaign contribution hearing and I assumed that what Senator Bankhead said was true—that Mr. Underwood did not know his campaign was being financed by Wall Street. I asked the people of Alabama why when charged publicly made that his campaign was being financed by Wall Street my friend did not find out. I said that he was in the hands of the managers and during the campaign he used as a tool of Wall Street, he could be used by the liquor interests or any other interests."

Underwood A "Dummy."

"But did you charge directly that I was the tool of Wall Street or the liquor interests?" Mr. Underwood demanded.

"I said you were a dummy," Hobson replied with emphasis, "and a dummy you had been used and could be used again."

Underwood then demanded to hear anything else in his public life upon which to base such a statement and asked Hobson to state it in the presence of the house.

Hobson referred to the conference on the tariff bill which struck out the Pomerehne amendment, requiring the full revenue tax on brands used in fortifying wines. He charged that in agreeing to that Underwood had consented to let more than seven million dollars "rest in the pockets of the liquor interest."

After explaining briefly the history of the amendment Underwood turned to answer Hobson's general charge.

Gives Explanation.

"Is there any other man in this chamber who believes the charge that 'Wall Street'?" He demanded swaying in his place to face every member present.

"No, No," shouted members of both sides.

KEEP WATCHFUL EYE ON MEXICAN EVENTS

STATE DEPARTMENT AT WASH-INGTON WILL COUNTERANCE
NO VIOLENCE TO ARREST-ED DEPUTIES.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN

Envoys to Mexico and O'Shaughnessy
Will Present Messages to Mexican Authorities—Will Not Send Troops or War-

Washington, Oct. 13.—After a conference between Secretary Bryan and President Wilson today it was announced at the White House that telegrams had been dispatched to both John Lind at Vera Cruz and Charge O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City to make representations to the Huerta government that the United States would look with displeasure upon any injury to the Mexican deputies now under arrest.

President's Attitude.

It has been left entirely to Mr. Lind's discretion whether he should return to Mexico City to impress upon the Huerta government the views of the United States, but Charge O'Shaughnessy has been directed to address himself to the minister of foreign relations and make it plain that the United States attaches the "greatest importance" to the arrest of the deputies and is keenly interested in what will be their fate.

President Wilson told callers today, that with the present state of affairs, he did not see how a constitutional election could be held in Mexico. So far as he immediate policy of the United States is concerned it was made plain by the president that there would be no departure from the original position that the Mexicans should settle their own affairs. There are no plans today for any increase in the number of American warships in Mexican waters.

Await the Outcome.

The government here has abandoned all hope of seeing an election or treating any further with Huerta as an individual. There is a disposition in administration circles to await the course of events with the hope that the existing road block will be drawn as to bring about a natural adjustment without outside interference.

My opinion is that there can be no constitutional election in Mexico under existing circumstances," said Senator Bacon, chairman of the foreign relations committee, after a conference with President Wilson at the white house. The senator said he had not discussed the matter with the president, but that it was obvious that with the arrest of the deputies and the dissolution of congress no one would dare to take issue with Huerta and there could be no free expression of opinion on the part of the people.

Fighting Continues.

Laredo, Tex., Oct. 13.—Fighting between federal and constitutionalists which began Friday, sixty-five miles south of Laredo, continued today, according to reports received at Nuevo Laredo.

Sixty-five wounded were brought to hospitals there yesterday. The international bridge here is closed to general traffic.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION FROM BOMB OUTRAGE

Entire Block on East Side of New York Shaken by Concussion—
Italian Grocery Wrecked.

New York, Oct. 13.—Despite the recent round-up of Italians suspected of being responsible for most of the outbreaks committed in New York, the East Side was disturbed today by one of the most terrific bomb explosions in years. An entire block was shaken and every pane of glass throughout the block was shattered. The grocery store of Candello Gatto was wrecked. Gatto had received several black-hat letters recently. Two hundred and fifty persons were driven from their homes by the explosion.

UNUSUAL OPERATION CURES MAN OF SPINAL TROUBLE

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 13.—Ralph M. Armstrong, a prominent club man to this city is recovering in a local hospital from an operation that, of itself, cost him a piece of his liver and into the spine. A year ago he injured his spine by falling in a bathtub at his home. He apparently recovered but some months later again suffered a similar injury while playing baseball. Armstrong was today declared cured.

SOX PLAYING HARD TO WIN TITLE TODAY

Callahan's American Leaguers Score
Five Runs in Fourth and Fifth Innings in Today's Battle.

The Sox evidently had an off-day last night when they lost to the Cubs for today they got to him in the fourth inning for three runs, and in the fifth inning for two more counts, while the Cubs could secure but one off of Scott, the lone run coming in the fourth round.

The Sox need only today's game to win the series.

Score:
Cubs ..... 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0
Sox ..... 0 0 0 3 2 0 0 0
Batteries: Sox—Scott and Schalk.
Cubs—Humphries and Archer.
Sox Followers Confident.

Followers of the White Sox were confident that their favorites today would win their fourth victory of the city series and the local champion. Bright, balmy Indian summer weather made a perfect day for the game and the crowd which early lined up at the South Side park made it probable that a record attendance would see what many expected to be the final contest.

It was believed that Jimmie Callahan would open the game with Scott Hickey and Ed Walsh would be necessary. Humphries was to pitch for the Cubs.

Sox Win Sunday.

The White Sox again triumphed over the Cubs, Sunday afternoon, in the fifth game of the inter-city series, winning a hard fought eleven-inning battle by the score of 2 to 0.

Reuz's great pitching was mainly responsible for the American leaguers' victory. He allowed but three scattered hits and issued no walks. Only two Cubs reached second base and none third.

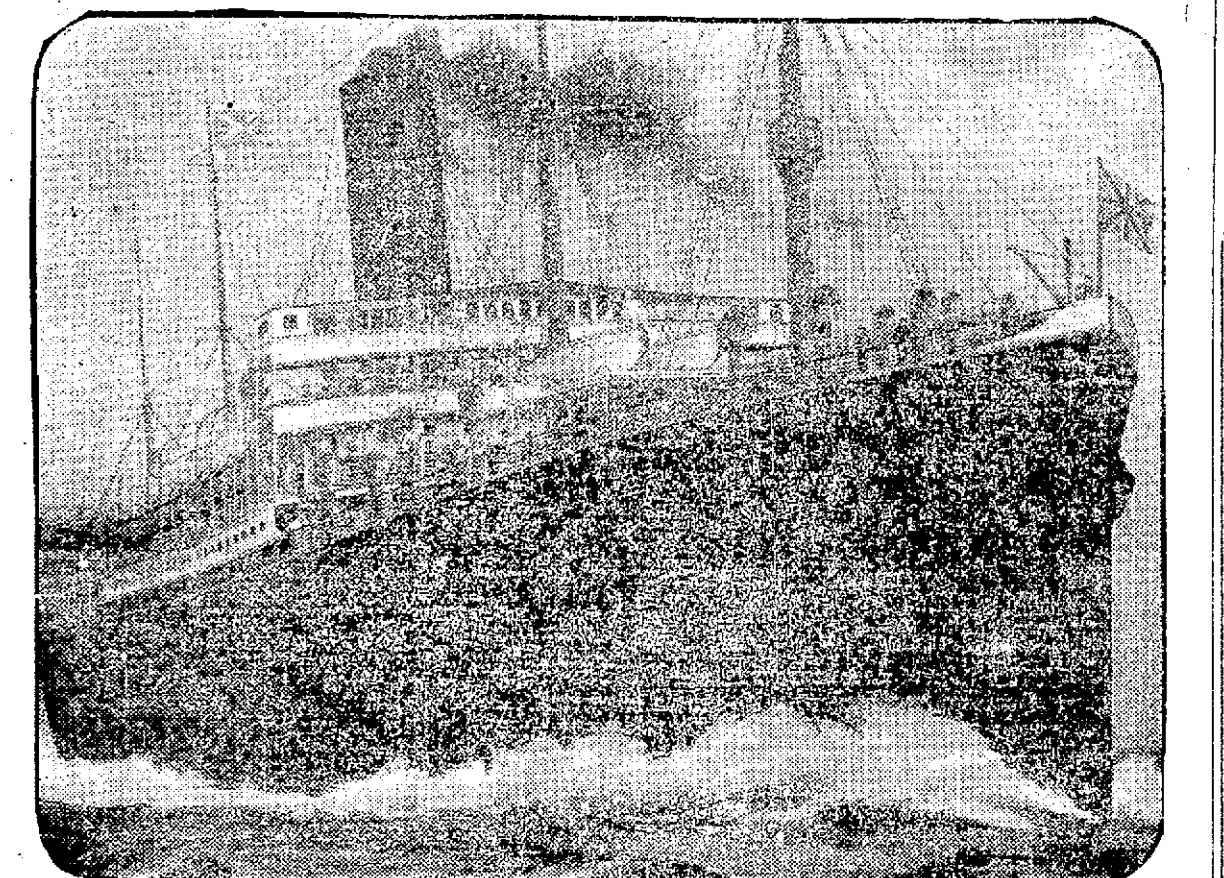

Cheney also pitched well, but finally weakened in the eleventh, when Lord Doolin Chase sacrificed, Fourrier and Collins singled in succession and then worked a double steal, netting the two winning runs.

The White Sox have now won three games of the Cubs two of the series. Score:

THREE ENTER RACE FOR CONGRESS SEAT

Spirited Campaign Closed in First
Congressional District of West Virginia.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 13.—A spirited campaign closed today in the first congressional district of West Virginia. The preliminary to the special election to be held tomorrow to choose a successor to Representative John W. Davis, who resigned his seat in the House to become solicitor general in the Wilson administration. Three candidates are contesting for the seat. The democratic nominee is Major Mansfield M. Neely, a prominent young lawyer of Fairmont. The republican nominee is State Senator Julian C. Meane of this city, while the standard bearer of the Progressive party is George A. Laughlin, also of this city, who made the race against Davis last November on both the Republican and Progressive tickets.

Politicians generally regard the election tomorrow as the most important of the year in this district. The contest is attracting more than ordinary attention because of the large labor vote and the big manufacturing interests in the district. The new tariff law is now in operation, and though it is early for the people to pass a conclusive opinion on it, the election will be held on the result of the election will be seen on an expression of labor and the manufacturer toward the new tariff.

The district is normally Republican. There have been elections in the last twenty years when the Republican candidates had majorities around six thousand. John W. Davis, who carried the district twice, was greatly helped by his own popularity and his high standing as a legislator. At the present time the Democrats are confident of holding the district, especially as the normal Republican vote is expected to be split between the regular Republican and Progressive candidates.

WESTERN FUEL CASES ARE CALLED IN COURT

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 13.—The Western Fuel cases in which are involved a number of the officers, directors and employees of the Western Fuel Company, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government through manipulating weights, were called today in the United States District Court. These are the cases that came into prominence with the Dicks-Caminetti white slave cases when District Attorney McNab resigned and charged he was being hampered by the Department of Justice at Washington. He declared that the department had ordered him to postpone both the Western Fuel cases and the Dicks-Caminetti cases. The offenses charged are felonies punishable by imprisonment for a period not to exceed two years or by fine of $10,000 or both.

The audience room of the Christian Science church was filled yesterday afternoon with persons interested in hearing the lecture of Bliss Knapp. His discourse will appear in Tuesday's Gazette.

ELECTRIC RAILROAD MEN IN CONVENTION

"Safety First" Movement to Come In
For Large Share of Attention
—Congestion a Topic.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 13.—The "safety first" movement is to come in for a large share of attention at the thirty-second annual convention of the American Electric Railway association, which met here today for a session of four days. Other matters that are scheduled for consideration are the relief traffic congestion in cities, profit sharing with employees, the present tendency of public service laws and regulations, the relation of carriers to the development of the territory they service.

In point of attendance the present convention bids fair to eclipse all of the previous meetings of the association. Nearly 600 companies, which control about eighty per cent of the electrically operated railways of North America, are represented at the gathering. In conjunction with the meeting there is an elaborate exhibition of electric railway appliances and equipment and the latest inventions and improvements in the way of safety devices for the protection of passengers and employees.

PLAY FOR WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Competition Takes Place on Links of Wilmington Country Club—
British Golfers Entered.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 13.—The eyes of golfers who are interested not merely in golf but in any form of outdoor athletics for women will be turned during the present week upon the links of the Wilmington Country Club, where the present British women's golf championship was opened today. Added interest is given the tournament this year by the participation of two of the most noted women golfers of Great Britain, Miss Muriel Dodd, the present British title holder, and Miss Mabel Harrison, three times winner of the Irish championship.

The championship tournament was begun today with an 18-hole medal play, and the second round, 36 holes, coming eligible for match play. Tomorrow the first match round will be run off with a consolation event for those who fail to reach the desired goal. The final round, 36 holes, will be played on Wednesday. There will be an 18-hole match play handicap against bogey, while on Thursday, in addition to the third match play round, driving, approach and putting contests will be held. The tournament will be a four-round competition on scratch basis, while mixed foursomes will be run off in conjunction with the decisive test on Saturday.

TWO ARRESTED ON CHARGES OF ARSON

Preliminary Hearings to be Held at Hurley, Wis., This Week.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Hurley, Wis., Oct. 13.—Arrested on charges of arson, Robert Gill and Joseph LeGendre of Saxon will be given preliminary hearings Wednesday and Thursday. The two were brought here to jail last night. The arrests were the result of investigations conducted for more than two years by the state fire marshals. They are charged with being responsible for numerous fires which have destroyed property valued at $100,000.

CHARLES BECKER APPEAL IS UP FOR ARGUMENT

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The appeal in the case of Charles Becker, the former New York city police lieutenant, and the four gunmen, "Whitney," "Lefty Louis," "Gyp the Blood," and "Dago Frank," who have been inmates of the death house since the execution of the four men, was argued today before the Court of Appeals today. The five were convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the day before they were shot down in front of the Hotel Metropole early on the morning of July 16, 1912. According to the evidence at the trial the murder was committed by the four gunmen, and the investigation of Becker, whose alleged role was to prevent the gambler from testifying before the grand jury in regard to the police corruption.

CASE OF HARRY JONES HAS PRELIMINARY HEARING

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 13.—Harry Jones, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, who was arrested ten days ago on a conspiracy to transport explosives unlawfully, has given a preliminary hearing today before United States Commissioner Young. The charge against Jones is the same as the charges on which thirty-eight of his fellow-unionists were convicted in the Federal court here last December and sentenced to Leavenworth prison. Jones' arrest resulted from information furnished by George E. Davis, a union iron worker, who, upon being arrested recently in the East, is said to have confessed to dynamite charges that rivalled the exploits of the McNamara brothers and of Ortie McManigara.

TO PASS MONEY BILL BEFORE ADJOURNMENT

WILSON AND SENATOR COME TO DEFINITE DECISION FOLLOW-
ING CONFERENCE.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Oct. 13.—Conferences today between President Wilson and Senators disclosed a sentiment against any recess of congress while the currency bill is pending.

"I don't think it will be a political blunder equal to a crime," said Senator Stone of Missouri at the conference with the president, "if we do not pass a currency bill during the present session. We cannot let it go over until December."

Washington, Oct. 13.—Bankers representing the "country" banks of the nation or those outside the reserve banks, who are today discussing the administration currency bill before the senate banking committee. The delegation appointed by the recent Boston convention of the American Bankers' association urged amendment of the bill in several important particulars. Later they were received by President Wilson at the White House. The bankers urged the committee to make some provision for raising the two per cent government bonds on which the present policy is based. They suggested refunding a higher interest paying bonds or retirement at not less than par. Gordon Jones of Denver made a special plea on that point.

The provision to force national banks maintaining savings departments to segregate a portion of their assets for that purpose and invest in government bonds, on account of securities was attacked.

The bankers also declared that the function given the federal reserve banks under the bill of acting free of charge as a clearing house, checks of member banks would deprive them of an important part of their profits now derived from the collection of out of town checks. They also urged that the bill be amended to allow them to carry a portion of their reserves in the reserve city banks with which they now do business.

ING CONFERENCE.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Oct. 13.—Conferences today between President Wilson and Senators disclosed a sentiment against any recess of congress while the currency bill is pending.

"I don't think it will be a political blunder equal to a crime," said Senator Stone of Missouri at the conference with the president, "if we do not pass a currency bill during the present session. We cannot let it go over until December."

Washington, Oct. 13.—Bankers representing the "country" banks of the nation or those outside the reserve banks, who are today discussing the administration currency bill before the senate banking committee. The delegation appointed by the recent Boston convention of the American Bankers' association urged amendment of the bill in several important particulars. Later they were received by President Wilson at the White House. The bankers urged the committee to make some provision for raising the two per cent government bonds on which the present policy is based. They suggested refunding a higher interest paying bonds or retirement at not less than par. Gordon Jones of Denver made a special plea on that point.

The provision to force national banks maintaining savings departments to segregate a portion of their assets for that purpose and invest in government bonds, on account of securities was attacked.

The bankers also declared that the function given the federal reserve banks under the bill of acting free of charge as a clearing house, checks of member banks would deprive them of an important part of their profits now derived from the collection of out of town checks. They also urged that the bill be amended to allow them to carry a portion of their reserves in the reserve city banks with which they now do business.

SPORT Snap-Shots

As a result of a little case of smallpox at Swatmore, it may be that the football team there will be unable to play for a week or two yet. A rather unusual development has halted the progress of practice on the gridiron there. All the members of the football squad are limping around with sore arms, the re-sub of the vaccination they were subjected to along with the rest of the student body. So that few of them care to take a chance on having their arms rudely handled in scrimmage in their present tender shape.

It seems rather a pathetic state of affairs that Jim Thorpe, the champion all round athlete of the world, has presented such a pitiable picture in the struggle for the world's championship. Thorpe has been completely out of it as far as helping his team in any way in winning their way to the top. A master at every other branch of sport, he is nothing more than a dud at the particular line that he has chosen as a means of livelihood. At that he is an utter failure. In the game not so long ago at New York, when the Giants had the pennant in hand, McGraw put Thorpe in center field, one of the few times he has been used this season. New York fans are fond of shouting welcome advice at players in the case of Thorpe it was particularly unfortunate that these grandstand managers are not often squeezed. Jim's performance at the bat amounted to two strikeouts on the easiest sort of chances and two weak little grounders. And the large mound in the stadium took advantage of it. It was clear that Thorpe was keenly hurt by their derision.

The American league race this season, though it was a time and rather uninteresting one with the Athletics winning so handsomely, afforded a few surprises none the less. Prognosticating dope in baseball, as has been said so often before, is nothing to be relied on. No one was particularly surprised to see the Athletics come back in such neat shape to championship form, but it was surprising that the Boston Red Sox should fall off so much the season after coming off the pennant. Dropping in one season from the top of the heap to the second division is not generally done by our best people. Many reasons are offered for the Red Sox' fall and quite a few believe that their winning in 1912 was largely a matter of good fortune. It's true that they were lucky throughout the race last season and craved the whole course with few if any injuries to their players. This year it has been quite the other way, and a lack of capable substitutes has hampered them materially. Perhaps, too, they were a little overconfident in starting out this season and Stahl's inability to get into harness was another hindrance. Cleveland has offered another surprise in the American league by starting out under Joe Mauer and making a fight for the pennant most all of the way. Fred Fothergill's remarkable comeback performance and the development of Chapman at short offered great surprise for American league fans and at the same time helped the Naps a great deal in making the fight they did. And the Cleveland club owners after several seasons of doubtful prosperity have made quite a neat little piece of change.

BASEBALL CHATTER.

Pitcher Eddie Cicotte, of the White Sox, proved to be one of the greatest favorites in Chicago this season.

A son of Jack Dunn, the Baltimore manager, is captain of the Baltimore City College football eleven.

Jack Kelley, the former International league, will pilot the Scranton team of the New York State league next season.

Baseball critics declare that Jim Thorpe may make a fast and rangy fielder, but he has a lot to learn about hitting.

Though Brooklyn finished down in the second division, Jake Daubert earned the right to be classed among the greatest players in the game.

Clark Griffith says that with Johnson, Boehling and Groom pitching, his team could beat the best of them in a world's series of seven games.

At the "Twyler Day" celebration in Boston recently "Lefty" Tyler of the Braves, received a silver loving cup a purse of $100, a pair of diamond sleeve buttons and a chest of silver.

J. C. McGill and Jack Hendricks, the new Indianapolis moguls, also own the Denver team, which outfit landed the Western league pennant.

for the third season in succession. A large sign on the majestic building, Milwaukee, in which Mrs. Havenor has her office, reads: "This is the office of the only woman in the world who owns a pennant winning ball team."

Golf, it is said, caused the cracking of the Red Sox this season. Speaker, Lewis, Hooper and Wood are devotees of the game described by the late Dan Daly as "hitting the ball and then trying to find it."

FOOTBALL NOTES.

Coach "Hurry Up" Vost of the Michigan football squad has cut his varsity material to 25 men.

Maxwell and Gottschalk, who are receiving a lot of attention at Brown, are considered promising guards.

Penn State, which is to play Pennsylvania 14 to 0 last fall and 22 to 6 in 1911.

The University of Virginia, with a veteran team, expects to beat Vanderbilt this fall for the championship of the South.

Reisner, a young brother of the former Navy star, is playing with Georgia, where he is doing the punting and kicking.

As usual, the teams of the middle West are making much more of plays involving the forward pass than the big eleven of the East.

Shantz has sent two of his Cornell varsity men, Phillips, a half-back, and McElvaine, a fullback, down to the second team.

Walter Eckersall, the old Chicago university football star, has been selected for the third time as referee of the Penn-Michigan game this fall.

FOOTVILLE DEFEATS CARDINALS IN LONG DRAWN-OUT CONTEST

Heavy Sticking by White Sox Aided By Good Pitching Allows White Sox to Gain Revenge, 5 to 3.

Five healthy swats and an error in the fifth inning proved the Waterloo of the Janesville Cardinals at the driving park Sunday afternoon as their opponents, the Footville White Sox, drove in a flock of runs that proved to great for the Cards to overcome despite the fact that they did some sticking themselves. The tape at the end of the drawn out combat showed the villagers leading by a five to three score.

Kavanaugh, who in the summer plays the national pastime with the Rockford leaguers but when business is dull helps out the Footville bunch, was the life saving member of the visitors for being aided with plenty of nourishment, pitched considerable of a game, letting the Cards down with seven drives and fanning nine. The real dope of the local's defeat was the way that the Sox hurrruped the pill when clouds meant scores. E. Fraser star sticker for the visitors delivered three healthy drives in five times the rubber. Roderick was close behind him with two safe ones and they came with men on the tow path. Footville showed plenty of fighting spirit and fought for every point in the game and for several more that was not due to them. Ump Cook was baited continually and as consequence was slightly fussed before the ninth inning was over, the game being called because of darkness before three outs were made in Janesville's half.

Footville obtained a limping start in the first when E. Fraser the slugging one, sent a stinging liner to the grass yard, slugging, holding down the second sack. Kavanaugh was good for the necessary wallop sending the runner across. Footville should not have scored this tally as Scott, left fielder and from Beloit, dropped a weak fly back of third, giving Langdon life at first. Snodgrass, Merkle, or Luke McGluck had nothing on that error.

Janesville tied the score in the second when Fleming hit and made third on infield outs and scored on a slam.

The game rolled on in a peaceful way until the fifth when the visitors got to "Cuddy" and four running singles were bunched. After scoring two runs, Footville filled up the cushions again helped by an error by Hall, and Clark surprised himself and slamed out a nice liner. Butters had them well tamed thereafter even the slugging Fraser failing to connect.

Janesville pushed a tally across in the fifth when Owens booted and Kavanaugh showed signs of being wild, walking Demorassy advancing Sullivan to second, who scored on Neil's bingle. In the ninth Janesville made a hard effort to end the season with a victory, landing on Kavanaugh for a drive and this linked with an error sent the third score across. Darkness had settled on the diamond and the players asking Cook for lanterns and Janesville finished two runs short of downing the hangout Footvillers.

JANESVILLE HIGHS DEFEAT FREEPORT IN CLOSE BATTLE

Atwood Scores Only Touchdown in Opening Quarter After Brilliant Playing—Penalties Mar Game.

Coach Curtis' 1910 gridiron warriors proved that they could come back Saturday, when they defeated the heavy Freeport high school eleven, although the score only stood 6 to 0 at the end of the fracas. Outplaying their opponents at every stage of the game, Janesville was handicapped considerably by the rough tactics which Freeport used, and also by the penalties which were registered against them during the game. Frases of speed were numerous on the part of the local eleven, only to be stopped by a loss of from five to fifteen yards at frequent intervals. Freeport put up a game fight, and are really credited with more honor because of the close score. Janesville should have secured at least four touchdowns, for their alertness in getting off their plays was superior to their opponents'. Freeport was fairly fast and outweighed the locals by at least ten pounds per man.

The Janesville squad appeared on the field at three o'clock and immediately tried out the field with a short signal drill, and punting practice. Freeport had already been through her preliminary exercises, and was waiting. The park was ideal for football, and close to seven hundred students, business men and fans crowded the grandstand to witness the struggle which was the first game Freeport had had with a Wisconsin team since 1903, and the first year that that city had seen a high school eleven on the field since 1905.

First Quarter.
Freeport won the toss and chose to receive the kick, defending the south goal, with the wind against them. At 3:17 Hemming kicked to M. Guhl, who was downed in his tracks. He fumbled and Stewart recovered. Atwood, Dalton and Dearborn ran the ball up to the fifteen yard line, where on the first play Atwood was sent over the remaining distance for the only touchdown of the game. It was a spectacular run. Atwood kicked to Smiley on the kickoff, but Smiley touched the ball to the ground, and the try for goal was not allowed.

Score, Janesville 6; Freeport 0. Hemming kicked off again, but Freeport lost the ball on downs. Janesville's backfield started another snarl, but were penalized often. They had advanced the ball to the opponent's fifteen yard line when time was called for the first quarter.

Second Quarter.
Janesville carried the ball almost entirely in the second period. Dalton started on line plunges. Atwood was sent over right end for a gain of 25 yards. Hayes made it first down twice by adding 5 yards around right end. Janesville was again penalized 15 yards for holding. Janesville held for downs, and was their ball as time was called for end of first half.

Third Quarter.
Freeport kicked to Hayes, who returned the ball 5 yards. The locals were forced to kick. Dietmann made a spectacular run of 25 yards around right end. Hayes saved touchdown by good judgment in stopping opponent, ten yards from goal line. Janesville held the Sucker men for downs, and it was the locals ball on their own ten yard line. Janesville started a snarl again, and advanced the ball past the middle of the field, as time for third period was called.

Fourth Quarter.
It was Janesville's ball. During this period, Referee Bervi, continuously penalized Janesville, which looked unnecessary, and which brought forth much mockery from the crowd. A good gain of thirty yards by Dearborn and Atwood was lost when two fifteen yard penalties were registered against the locals. The game ended with Janesville threatening to score.

The lineup was as follows:

Freeport—J. Guhl, l. e.; Powell, l. a.; Holmes, l. g.; Colvin, c.; Fuller, r. g.; Langstein, r. l.; Wicks, r. e.; Hill, q. b.; Hart, l. h.; M. Guhl and Donahue, a. b.; Dietmann, l. b.

THE DAIRY COW.

James R. Hill of railroad fame, redeemed the "Great Northern" from bankruptcy and put in on a paying basis by developing the country along the line. Today thousands of farmers are heavy shippers because Mr. Hill helped them to a start as stock raisers.

A few months ago the bankers of Minnesota, inspired by Mr. Hill's example, began a systematic campaign to promote dairying among the all grain farmers of the Northwest. Results were so satisfactory that the state endorsed the movement, and recently the governor invited representative farmers and bankers to a conference to further the work.

The Commercial West reports that it was arranged for the state, through its county agricultural agents, to arouse interest among the farmers, and furnish instruction. The local banks, backed by the larger ones, are to advance money to responsible farmers, to establish their herds. The use of pure bred stock is emphasized; and farmers of a community are asked to co-operate in the purchase of stock. The value of such a movement is readily apparent.

This is a move in the right direction.

A writer in commenting says:

"The dairy cow is one of the greatest producers of wealth in the United States. Her products last year were valued at $830,000,000. Unlike the cotton and cereal crops, this represents the conversion into human food of rough forage and feed that otherwise would be wasted. The dairy farmer is among the most prosperous of his class, as a rule, because of the steady, daily income the business yields him. When grain crops failed in North Dakota, three years ago, an act was passed permitting the counties to bond themselves to purchase seed for another crop. The Department of Agriculture says that while this was going on over the state, a dairying community in the western part was buying automobiles, building silos, and loaning money to its less fortunate neighbors.

"One reason for the cheapness of bread is because the millers of this country have a market for their by-product. Yet we do not use it all. Denmark buys our milk feeds, and sells $30,000,000 worth to England. The place for that feed is on our own farms. Millions of dollars worth of grass and other feeds go to waste every year, which the dairy cow could turn into money for the farmer, and food for the people. And yet there are only 21,000,000 of them in the country to turn feed and forage into food and gold.

Minnesota's example should be followed by the governor, bankers, and farmers of every state that can raise corn and grass. It is a sure way to secure unobstructed prosperity."

SOUNDS FAMILIAR.

Joe A. Burton of Lawrence county, Indiana, sums up the reform situation as follows; in a late issue of the Farmers' Review. The list of complaints sound familiar and indicate that the regulators still have plenty of business in sight.

"Labor on the farm is so high that the farmer cannot afford to hire. The wages paid farm laborers are so low that the hired man cannot support his family.

"Farmers should be compelled to raise more hogs and cattle and keep them till full grown so that consumers could have cheaper meat.

"The government ought to make provision for farmers to borrow money at a low rate of interest so they could fix up their farms and buy machinery.

"Farmers ought never to go into debt.

"Farmers ought to be more energetic and do their work better so that their crops would be larger and the public could have more to consume.

"The farmer is not getting enough for his product.

"The consumer pays too much for what he uses.

"The go-between is losing money and must have greater profits.

"The producer ought to get more for his product, and the consumer pay less for what he consumes.

"Everything ought to cost less and sell for more.

"Our laws are much behind the times. Officers ought to have higher salaries and the people pay less taxes. Everybody is being much abused by the other fellow.

"If any one has saved up anything that is proof that he is a swindler and that it should be taken from him. Only poor people are honest, or ought to be respected.

"All old persons and mothers ought to be pensioned. The Lord only knows how other poor people could pay the pensions.

"Freight rates ought to be cheapened, but railroads ought to have larger earnings so they can provide better equipment.

"The tariff ought to be raised on everything we have to sell and lowered on everything we buy. Everything is sold by somebody and everything is bought by somebody. Consequently the tariff ought to be raised and lowered on everything.

"All tuberculous persons ought to be isolated. They say everybody has tuberculosis, more or less. Consequently everybody ought to be isolated.

"That the above is a true statement of the conditions in our country I am positive for I hear people say so every day and I see it also black and white."

Mrs. Pankhurst, the noted English suffragette, after smashing all records—and many windows—as a reformer, is now on her way to this country to set a pace for American women. She will spend a few days in New York, and then come west, arriving in Chicago about the end of the month. Miss Jane Addams, of reform reputation, is one of the reception committee to welcome the London disturber. The old world has a few people who should not be allowed to escape, and Mrs. Pankhurst is one of them.

The Medical Review of Reviews has launched a campaign for improving the breed of the human family by attempting, through publicity, to bring together a man and a woman who are physically, mentally and morally sound. Each applicant is to be scientifically examined, and the most perfect pair will be introduced and turned over to the wiles of cupid.

Cash prizes of one thousand dollars are hung up for the successful candidates. The experiment will be watched with interest.

The state of Illinois seems to have escaped the federal law on passes, but the last state legislature came to the rescue, and after the first of January, all patriots will be obliged to put up good money for transportation, or stay at home. The trains running between Chicago and Springfield, during legislative sessions, are largely dead-head trains, and the railroads are glad of the relief in sight.

London hotels are complaining about loss of American patronage because of stringent laws recently passed, compelling dogs to spend three months in quarantine before they can be admitted to society. As a result, the city of Paris is capturing American women whose lives are devoted to the care of a poodle. France wants the patronage, dogs and all, but England draws the line.

The self-confessed murderer Spencer, is in a class by himself. If the man is not insane he is certainly a degenerate of the worst type. The workings of such a mind are more difficult to analyze than the thoughts which inspire a sanctified crook, who uses the church as a cloak for dishonesty.

The wires have been kept so busy with the great ocean disaster of late that cyclones, which have visited various parts of the country, excite but little attention. Much property has been destroyed by these storms, but the loss of life has not been heavy.

It used to be that a woman could wear almost anything, but now she can wear almost nothing.

Harry Statuck was the victim of a strange freak of lightning the other morning about 7 o'clock. He was asleep in an iron bed and the lightning entered a window and after looking around a while made for the bed and began to circle round through its framework at a speed which Mr. Statuck estimates at about ninety miles an hour. Mr. Statuck was of course thoroughly awake at that time. The bed was red-hot all over. When the lightning finally departed Mr. Statuck got up and found that $2.95 which he had in his trousers pocket had been melted into an unrecognizable mass. The trousers had hung on one of the bed posts. Mrs. Statuck states that she would like to engage that bolt of lightning by the season, as it is the only thing that ever got her husband out of bed so early in the morning. The neighbors look upon the occurrence as an act of providence.

Where?

Where, oh, where is the old-time maid. The modest violet. The quiet and retiring maid. We never can forget? A half dozen petticoats.

She worn to keep her form. To show an inch of angle then. Was held to be bad form. She used to help her mother With the housework every day; She never danced the bunny tug Or other movements gay.

She never hiked around at night Or traveled forth alone. It caused a scandal when she went Without a chaperone. It seems we never will see again. This modest maiden fair. Where has she gone? We ask in vain.

For echo answers: "Where?"

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

REAL EDUCATION.

Education, real education, does not mean stuffing with facts, as is sometimes believed.

It means drawing out the latent powers of an individual. It means developing those powers in a way to bring them to their highest point of use.

Look up the word "education" in the dictionary. You will find it made up of the Latin prefix "e," meaning "out," and the verb "ducere," meaning to lead: "educate"—"to lead out."

In other words, education brings out what is in an individual.

If parents kept this definition in mind schools would be charged with fewer failures. Too often they expect the parrot-like repetition of lessons and the drilling in dry facts to put into the heads of their children the ability to think that requires careful drawing out for its development.

Learning by rote cannot develop brains.

They need the careful guidance and encouragement which only a skilled teacher and sympathetic, helpful parents can give.

Mother and father are the best teachers.

It is unreasonable to expect a teacher with a large class, charged with the supervision of many pupils, to exert as great an influence on the child as can be brought and must be brought to bear in the home. The best results are attained when mother and father are not too busy with their own affairs, not too much engrossed in the cares of home support and home supervision, to take an active interest in the education of the child.

How often do we hear: "I do not know what is the matter with my boy. He is bright enough, I am sure, but he does not make satisfactory progress in his lessons."

Are you sure the fault is not yours? Are you sure that you give sufficient time and attention to training your boy to think for himself, not to depend on the teacher or his fellow pupils or on others to do his thinking for him?

Learning lessons is not all or even the major part of getting an education. The best part is the training of the mind to think, to observe, to draw conclusions.

Better one fact utilized than a hundred merely learned.

SEPARATION SUIT

ATTRACTS NOTICE

Mrs. Raymond Belmont.

The suit for separation brought by Mrs. Raymond Belmont, known on the stage as Ethel Lorraine, has been set for trial in New York Monday. It was instituted shortly after the youthful husband, who is the son of August Belmont, left his wife last spring.

Young Belmont admits that he married the show girl, and the sole question to be determined at the trial will be the amount of the allowance.

It Chortled.

A little five-year-old, being afraid of turkey gobblers, was at play in the yard one day last summer when an old gobbler began gobbling at her. She became frightened and ran to her grandmother, who asked her why she didn't shoo the old turkey away. She said she did. "But the old thing just laughed at me."

The Value Of The Crop

The total value of all the crops for 1913 will probably fall a half billion dollars short of the value of the 1912 crop unless prices advance materially. The value of a certain crop to a certain farmer cannot, however, be properly measured in dollars and cents. He wants to know what he can buy in the way of machinery, clothing and groceries with the corn or the beets or the buckwheat grown on forty acres. The money value of the crop might be misleading as the things he most needs may have risen or fallen in price.

Those farmers who regularly read the Monthly Report—issued by this Bank are in the best position to know what their crops are going to bring them in the things they must have. These Reports are sent regularly to any one requesting them.

Sound Carpet Advice

In selecting a carpet you are choosing something that will stare you in the face morning, afternoon and evening, day after day, for years to come.

Much depends upon whether you discard the cheap imitations sold in careless stores with their present apparent saving in price and pay a trifle more for the best of the kind you are going to use; something that the maker is not ashamed to weave his name into.

The carpets shown you here are the best of their kind. The patterns in very many cases are exclusive, and quality for quality, the prices are as low as you will find elsewhere—thanks to the largeness of our purchases.

RAISE FUNDS TO AID LOSERS IN CYCLONE

SUBSCRIPTION LIST CIRCULATED YESTERDAY WITH ENCOURAGING RESULTS.

MANY CONTRIBUTIONS

Hundreds of Visitors at Scene of Friday's Storm Make Liberal Donations—Over $600 Promised.

Subscription lists were circulated yesterday and today for the benefit of farmers who suffered heavy losses in last Friday's cyclone. Over $600 has been raised, or $300 of which has been received in cash and placed in the hands of Will McGue of the First National bank, and William Bladen of the Merchants' and Savings bank. Persons in Janesville and vicinity who have contributed to the fund are listed in the accompanying column. The aid in swelling the benefit may pay their funds to either of these banks.

I. S. Van Galder and E. L. Rice, both neighbors of the town line farmers, whose buildings were destroyed, circulated lists at the scene of the disaster yesterday. Hundreds of visitors coming in automobiles, carriages and on the interurban to view the wreckage, were most liberal in their donations, when solicited.

Edward McGue, clerk of the Jackson, who were the heaviest losers in the storm, will receive the bulk of the aid, according to Mr. Van Galder. Mr. Long, also a heavy loser, had his losses amply covered by insurance. It is stated Mr. McGue also had insurance for a small amount.

Farmers in the vicinity of the cyclone area were also most liberal in their donations. Many of them turned over money and other aid in the shape of labor and provisions directly to the families who suffered from the storm. Beloit and Janesville citizens have also given a considerable amount. More money should be raised, however, and will doubtless be forthcoming within a few days. Funds left at the Gazette office will be turned over to the proper persons.

PRISON TERMS KEEP DRUNKS AT DISTANCE

None Have Been Brought Into Court Since Heavy Penalties Were Given Offenders.

Since last Tuesday when Waldo Holmes was sentenced to a year in the state's prison for violation of parole, Clement Simmons to a similar term as a habitual drunkard, and John Doughter and Frank Croger to ninety days under the labor commitment law for intoxication, no drunks have been arraigned in the municipal court. The terms meted out to these have evidently had an excellent moral effect upon the community. Monday morning usually could be counted upon to present a number of drunks for arraignment but not a one was in waiting this morning. Judge Maxfield does not feel that a prison sentence for habitual drunkards is unduly harsh. The men to whom it is meted are those who have lost all self-control and unless taken severely in hand and treated will either become a public charge or meet an early death, not to mention making of themselves a menace to society and public nuisance. In prison they are given proper medical care, taught a useful trade and retired to fit physical and mental condition. In the communities from which they come and to which they may return no stigma of prison will attach to them for their acquaintances will know the unfortunate circumstances which made it necessary to send them there.

ELEVATED RAILWAY IS BUILT IN CITY

Constructed Without Obtaining Proper Franchise But Authorities Make No Objection.

Janesville now has its first elevated railway which extends from the east bank of the Rock river to Main street. Although it was constructed and is being operated without a franchise, the city authorities have entered no protest and taken no official notice of its existence. As far as is known the builders did not float any bonds or sell any stock, for it will accept no freight except Rock river and gravel and no passengers but the workmen of the Gould Construction company.

The new railway is a tramway about two feet high and was erected for the purpose of conveying material from the river bank to piles near the corner of Milwaukee and Main streets where it can easily be loaded upon wagons. It has just one car which is operated by two men, both of whom furnish the motive power, and is loaded from a huge bucket manipulated by the steam derrick.

Work on the bridge is progressing with dispatch. Concrete will be poured into the forms for the first arch some time this week and work on the coffer-dam for pier No. 3 has begun.

WILL ATTEND STATE MEETING OF D. A. R.

Mrs. Francis Grant to Report for Local Chapter—Mrs. Samuel Smith and Mrs. J. G. Rexford Delegates.

Janesville chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be represented at the seventeenth annual conference to be held at La Crosse on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, by Mrs. Francis Grant, regent, who will report for the local chapter, Mrs. Samuel Smith, delegate, and Mrs. John G. Rexford, alternate delegate. Mrs. Rexford is also on the program of the women's and children's welfare. Mrs. William Cummings, Story of New York City, president of the national society, will attend the convention.

Saturday, Oct. 18, is the twenty-third anniversary of the organization of the D. A. R. society at the Strathmore-Army Washington, D. C. Mrs. E. O. Kimberly of this city was fifth on the list of the original eighteen members. She has since served as regent of the state society for twenty-one years, a living memorial to more than 80,000 members of the organization throughout the country. It was erected at a cost of $300,000 and is the most magnificent edifice ever erected by women.

CONDITION OF CITY TREASURY IS GOOD

Report for September Shows Balance of Ninety Thousand—Other Cities on Ragged Edge.

Janesville's city treasury is in excellent condition compared with those of other cities in the state, notably Wausau and Antigo, according to the report of City Treasurer George Mauchow for the month of September. This shows a balance at the end of the month of $90,742, compared with $13,044 for Wausau. During September the funds in the treasury of the latter city dwindled from $39,364.20 to the amount just mentioned. The general fund was overdrawn $28,058.05 and the water department fund $4,413.94. The balance in the treasury is practically equal to the amount borrowed and received from the state. Only by repeated borrowing will the city of Antigo be able to pay the bills against it until tax collection in January. There is a balance of only $2,587.75 in the general fund and the school fund has been overdrawn $2,662.49.

No funds in the Janesville city treasury have been overdrawn and in most of them of consequence there is a substantial balance. The city's share of the income tax collection, $11,648.19, held as a reserve fund, has not yet been touched. Approximately $8,900 of this amount belongs to the amount borrowed and received from the state. This will become available with the money appropriated in the next budget as it is the policy of the administration to retain the income tax from the source in reserve until the budget is made. It can then determine how much money will have to be raised by other taxation.

The condition of the funds in the city treasury is shown by the following balances:

MACHINE CLEANS A BRICK

Old Mortar or Cement Is Scraped Off Quickly and Economically.

Among the recent grants of patents there has been one to a Philadelphia inventor which will be of great interest to builders, contractors and such persons. It is a machine which attains to the purpose of cleaning brick walls, have been taken from an old building, and after passing through this device the bricks are as clean as new and just as serviceable.

The machine is portable, and can be taken anywhere and operated on the site of a demolished building, taking the old bricks and transforming them into shapes as good as new for many purposes. It weighs about 400 pounds and is four feet long. It is operated by men, but this combination of machine and man has a capacity of 15 bricks per minute at a rate of 50 cents per 1,000 bricks. The capacity of one man is about 1,000 bricks per day by hand.

At one side of the machine there is a platform on which the bricks are placed and the other moving back and forth at regular intervals. One man places the end of an old brick between these plates and the mortar or cement is cleaned away. The distance of about an inch. The brick then passes through a trough, and the second man takes it and places the cleaned brick into an opening, which is supplied with a pair of sturdy knives. The brick is automatically seized and held in place, whereupon a plunger thrusts it through the opening, and as it passes along the knives clean off the foreign matter.

Born Optimist.

A friend's little girl was out walking with her grandmother. Said grandma: "Oh, Peggy, my feet are so tired!" and Peggy answered: "Yes, grandma, so are mine awfully tired. But I try to bear it bravely, thinking what a nice ride my stomach is having."

Bitter Sweet.

Women swallow at one mouthful the lie that flatters and drink drop by drop the truth that is bitter.—Dennis Diderot.

A QUESTION OF CUTS

By J. H. ADAMS

THERE was more truth than hypocrisy in G. T.'s oft-repeated description of the Evening Press's staff as "a happy family" and consequently there was more than usual concern when at length a rift appeared in the late and vexing discords marred the long-existent harmony. The trouble originated in the "sassing" of a stereotyper by a "devil" from the press room, but it was taken up by the respective foremen of those two departments and gradually spread until it involved G. T. and McCabe themselves. G. T., it should be explained, was owner of the Press and McCabe was his arbitrary, quarrelsome, and utterly loyal managing editor.

It is a lamentable fact that the slightest disaffection in a newspaper office invariably makes itself felt in the quality of the paper turned out. In the present instance the trouble showed itself in the miserable pictures that appeared in the Press. McCabe had long prided himself on the paper's cuts—clear, clean, well-selected, with fine contrasts of light and dark—and now for three weeks they had shown forth in the paper consistently blurred, indistinct and ugly. And he had done his best to locate the trouble without success.

G. T. himself had been highly nettled over the state of affairs. Coming into McCabe's office that morning he had thrown down a copy of the last edition of the day before.

"How long is this thing going to keep up?" he asked, angrily. "Yesterday the Bulletin printed that same front page picture as ours, with its cheap paper, cheap ink, and cheap presses, and it made an 'also ran' of ours. We're getting out a beautiful, artistic, high-class magazine all right."

McCabe's face reddened. Justifiable criticism of his paper didn't come often enough for him to be used to it.

"The trouble is," he explained, "there are so many men involved in the production of a good cut that it's difficult to locate the responsibility. In the first place, the photographer's got to make a good print, with plenty of sharp contrasts. Then the engraver's got to make a good plate. If he etches it a fraction of an inch too deep or too shallow, the jig's up. Then the stereotyper gets into the game. I'm suspicious of Walters. If he doesn't mount the cut in the form just right, or bakes his mat too long or too short, or slips up in any one of a dozen particulars, the thing comes out wrong. Same way with the press room. If they don't feed the ink right at the particular spot, or if there's too much moisture in the air, or if the quality of the white paper drops off, you don't get results. Now, each one of these men is blaming it on the other and I'm not mechanic enough to tell who's lying. I'm pretty well satisfied that Walters is the man who's tying the thing up, but I can't prove it. I've watched every form through the stereotyping room for a week, but he pretends to be doing his best, follows all the suggestions I make with suspicious alacrity, and the pictures come out worse than before. Yet I can't get the goods on him."

"What's he got against you?" inquired G. T.

"Oh, nothing against me, but he's sore on Tiernan and he wants to put it up to the press room."

G. T. ruminated a moment. Then he said the meanest thing he had ever uttered to McCabe in the seven years of their working together. "I guess you're a little off your feed," he observed, watching the other man closely. "Why don't you take a vacation of a couple of weeks and let Goodrich try his hand on the job?"

McCabe rose up, grandly raging, and his previous flush became in comparison like water to wine. "If you're not satisfied with my work," he began, hotly, "you can get—"

But G. T. wouldn't even give him the satisfaction of resigning.

"Oh, to hell with that sort of talk," he said, shortly. "Get busy. Do something. Fire somebody. I want to see an improvement." And he walked out of the room.

When Mr. Robert J. Walker was ushered into McCabe's sanctum that same morning he carried himself pompously, as always, but there was an undercurrent of uneasiness in his manner which McCabe promptly detected and wondered at. Mr. Walker was senior member of the firm of Walker and Stockbridge, owners of the biggest department store in town, and, incidentally, the biggest advertisers. He was short and stout and sweaty and his normal talk exploded from his lips like the clattering of a gasoline engine.

"Want to ask a little favor of you, Mr. McCabe," he began, mopping his fat, baldish head with his handkerchief. "There was a little accident on the river road last night. A little automobile smash-up in which my son was concerned. Could stand your man Rogers has got wind of it. It's a matter of no public importance and if you can see your way clear, wish you wouldn't use it."

He looked at McCabe anxiously. He had heard tales of the managing editor of the Press and his attitude toward the suppression of news.

"How did it happen?" asked McCabe.

"Why, barrier in the road where it was being repaired. Bob turned aside suddenly to avoid it and smashed into a lamp post. Machine was wrecked and he was thrown out. But he wasn't hurt. The story isn't worth anything."

"Was the chauffeur hurt?" inquired the latter.

"There was no chauffeur. Bob drove the car himself."

"What time was it?"

"After midnight. He had had supper at the Suburban Inn and was on his way home. If you can consistently leave it out I shall be very much obliged and I'll reciprocate when opportunity offers." He remained silent for some seconds, then, "Where's your business manager?" he asked, suddenly. "He's made a proposition to me to use a page in the Press, five days a week. I'd like to talk to him about it."

The bribe was plain enough, but McCabe didn't seem to notice it. "I'll have to see the story," he said, "before I decide about it. As you have stated it, it doesn't seem to be of much importance, and I don't know that we shall have to use it."

"Thanks," popped the old man, and rose to go. He appeared very much relieved, and very well satisfied with himself also.

"By the way," inquired McCabe, carelessly, "who was in the auto with your son?"

The perspiration showed on Mr. Walker's brow again, but he was prepared for this question, and answered it promptly.

"No one. He was alone."

Then, as McCabe said no more, he departed.

But that last question of McCabe's made necessary a little more active work on his part and on his way through the city room he signaled to Rogers, whom he knew, and invited the latter to the hotel in the

"What else?"

"I know that the lady was a stenographer in your office."

"Anything more?"

"I know that your son is engaged to be married to the daughter of that most eminent swell, Van Bibber, said daughter being now traveling abroad."

"Damn you! Anything more?"

"Oh, yes, a plenty. I know that he actually was married to the stenographer last night, at a little town just across the State line, and that the return trip, with the two hours' stop at the Suburban Inn, was, as you might say, in the nature of a honeymoon."

Walker glared at him a moment while he sipped his highball. Then he said, peremptorily: "This thing must be kept quiet."

"You can't do it," affirmed Rogers. "The accident must go on the police docket and every headquarters man in town will get it."

"No, it won't. I've fixed the man on the beat."

"Won't the girl leak?" asked the reporter.

"No, she's stuck on Bob and will do what he says. They were to have kept the marriage secret. The patrolman said he talked with you and you alone. It's up to you. What do you want?"

Rogers laughed. "There's a little bill my wife has dictated her own story. The result of it all was that about noon McCabe received another visitor, a pale, determined little woman, dressed cheaply in black, who forced her way into his office against the protest of his guardian office boy.

"I simply had to see you personally, Mr. McCabe," said this young woman. "I've heard of you, and it's a very important matter."

"What is it?" asked McCabe, curtly.

"Newspapers are always anxious to get first news of the marriage of people of prominence, aren't they?"

"Surely."

"And, if necessary, they will go to trouble and expense to get the facts, won't they?"

"What we pay for," growled McCabe, "depends on what you give us. Tell me your story, please, promptly. I'm a busy man."

The woman's face grew crimson. She was small and delicate and shabby, but there was a quiet dignity about her that shamed McCabe for the moment. "I'm not asking for pay," she went on, quietly, "but I do want you to confirm what I tell you. I have reason to believe that my sister ran off last night and was married."

"Is she the prominent person?"

"No," she answered, "but the man she married is."

"Who is your sister?"

"Her name is Florence Stevens."

"Where does she live?"

"At 712 Reservoir Street."

"And what is your name?"

"I'd rather not tell you—I think, perhaps, my husband might be offended at my coming here."

"I'm not likely to tell him," said McCabe. "Who is the man she married?"

"Robert J. Walker, Jr."

McCabe thought himself trained to wonder at nothing, but he gave a little jump at that. "How do you know?" he asked. "Tell me the circumstances."

The woman turned to him appealingly. "I'm in trouble, Mr. McCabe," she said. "Florence is a good girl, but she is young and very affectionate. She's a stenographer in Mr. Walker's office. Last night she stayed out until three o'clock, and when I questioned her she told me she had been married to that young man. She said it was to be kept a secret for the present, in order that the elder Mr. Walker might not be offended. Early this morning she got a note and went out for a half hour. When she came back she denied the story she had told me and said she had manufactured it on the spur of the moment to escape a scolding. I then asked her where she had been last night. She said she had been out riding in Mr. Walker's motor car and they had had an accident and that accounted for the late return."

Tears came into the woman's eyes. "Mr. McCabe," she continued, tremulously, "something underhand is being done. Florence made me promise last night to say nothing of the marriage, but I can't sit still and see her compromised without doing what I can. Since mother and father died, I am all she has."

"Where did this marriage take place?"

"She would not tell me, but she said that they went across the State line in the automobile."

"One moment," said McCabe. He called to the composing room for a proof of the auto accident story and it came down immediately through the pneumatic tube. It was a stick in length, and said simply that young Walker had accidentally smashed into a lamp-post and wrecked his car. Then McCabe rang for Rogers.

"Was no one in the car with Walker last night when the smash-up occurred?" he asked that gentleman.

If Rogers felt any uneasiness he did not betray it. "No," he said, "at least there was nothing said of anyone else in the police report. I talked with Johnson, who made the report, and he also said that Walker was alone."

"That's all," said McCabe.

"But she was with him," cried the woman, when Rogers had left.

"I'll look into—"

"I'll look into—"

situation just now. If we want to do anything at all, we've got to keep the paper going. And the story doesn't seem to be worth anything. The other papers have promised to keep it out."

McCabe hung up the receiver and turned to the women. "Your story doesn't sound very plausible," he said to her, "but I'll look into it."

But when the door was closed behind her he grew suddenly energetic. "Tell Goodrich to come in here," he shouted to his boy, and then jumped to a big map of the State that hung on the wall. "There was the river road, there was the State line, and there, just beyond it, the trifling little town of Meadville. That must be the place, surely. 'What county is Meadville in?' he asked Goodrich, as that individual came in.

Goodrich told him.

"Wire the courthouse there at once and find if R. J. Walker, Jr., got a marriage license recently. Call up some one in Meadville—the postmaster, anyone—and get the names of all the preachers in town. Then phone 'em. If they've got 'phones, or wire them immediately if they haven't, and see if any of them married Walker last night. Hustle a man in a taxicab at once to the Suburban Inn and find out who was with Walker when he was there last night. And rush a man to 712 Reservoir Street for a photograph of Miss Florence Stevens. We've got one of young Walker, haven't we? Speed 'em up, all of 'em. Mark the story 'Hold for release' by me."

Goodrich hurried out. "At least we'll get the facts," McCabe said to himself, and then, although it was his busy part of the day, he spent half an hour musing over what G. T. had said to him. "I suppose G. T.'s right," he observed inwardly at the end of that time. "We must keep the paper going." And yet, again, two hours later as he mounted the steps to the composing room, to take a last look at the forms, he repeated to himself: "I suppose we've got to keep the paper going."

Nevertheless, when the last edition of the Press appeared on the streets, there on the first page, under a scare-head and comprehensively illustrated, was a glowing account of the elopement of Miss Stevens and young Walker, and a quite extended interview with the preacher who performed the ceremony. McCabe, as usual, waited in the press room for the first copy of the big double sextuple. Tiernan, the boss pressman, handed it to him, with his eye on the pictures.

"Rotten again," he said, "though they'll come up a little better when we've run off a few copies."

"I tell you," he went on angrily, "the fault's in the stereotyping. Walters can do better than that if he wants to. You know I'm no knocker, Mr. McCabe, but that's the God's truth."

McCabe went straight to his room and sent for Walters. But when the door opened, two or three minutes later, it was to admit, not the foreman of the stereotypers, but the little woman who had visited him that morning.

"Oh," she cried, "I couldn't go away without thanking you. If you're a sister of your own, you know how I feel and how grateful I am to you. You see, I know something of the newspaper business. I know what a big advertiser Mr. Walker is. I know how interested he was in keeping that news out. I know how difficult it must have been for you to print it. But you won't regret it. Good-by and God bless you."

She turned to go, stopping abruptly at the sight of Walters, who had entered.

"Mary," he cried, "why didn't you tell me of this?" The woman looked from Walters to McCabe. "My husband," she gasped.

"Oh," she answered, "I didn't find out what was doing until after you left this morning and I didn't know what you'd think of my appealing to Mr. McCabe, but you've told me so much about him I know he would be the man to help us. So I came to him. And it has turned out all right."

McCabe looked curiously at the stereotyper. "You'd better go home with your wife," he said, gently for him. "I'll talk to you in the morning."

On the threshold of the door Walters hesitated, turned, balanced himself awkwardly for a moment. "I suppose it's about those cuts," he said, shamefacedly. "I think I've found out where the trouble lies, and they'll be all right hereafter."

And they were. The Press the next day, so radiantly did its pictures show forth, looked like one of the illustrated London weeklies. G. T. got his copy at the City Club and called up McCabe at once.

"How did you do it?" he asked, delightedly. "Those cuts are the best ever."

"Oh," said McCabe, genially, "I took your advice. You told me to fire somebody, and I have. I've fired Rogers."

next block, an invitation which the reporter accepted promptly.

Rogers was a new man on the Press, though not unknown to journalism in the town. His reputation was not altogether unshadowed, but he was a good headquarters man, when sober, and that fact, coupled with his piteous appeals, had landed him in his present berth. The wise Mr. Walker had had dealings with him before and therefore, when they were seated at an isolated table in the hotel cafe, wasted no time in coming to the point.

"How much do you know of the smash-up last night?" he asked.

"I know," said Rogers, "that there was a lady involved."

run up at your store which will soon be due," he observed.

"It's not little, and it's long overdue," exploded Walker. "Well, it's a bargain. Keep your mouth shut."

But, as it happened, the stenographer did leak, though not with malice. For no woman can be married without confiding the fact to at least one other member of her sex, and, besides, the stenographer had to account in some way for her return home at three o'clock in the morning from an ostensible evening call on a friend. Wherefore, under pledge of sacred secrecy, she told all to the married sister with whom she lived. Later in the morning, and yet quite early, after a visit from young Walker, she con-

NEW TARIFF LAW WILL MAKE MANY RATE REDUCTIONS

Synopsis of Measure on Which Special Session of Congress Has Been Working.

MARKED CHANGES IN THE AVERAGE DUTIES

Democrats Confident That the Country Will Be Benefited by the Alterations, and That Business Will Remain Unaffected.—Ad Valorem Rate in the Bill is From 27 to 29 Per Cent. In Payne-Aldrich Bill They Are 40.12 Per Cent.

Washington.—The Democratic tariff revision bill, first on the program of reforms mapped out when President Wilson came into office, advanced to its last congressional stage when it was brought back to the house from the joint conference committee with the unanimous indorsement of the Democratic conferees.

The measure, of course, has both its friends and enemies. According to the administration, it carries out four of the party promises. Tariff reform, reduction in the high cost of living, campaign against the trusts, in that duties have been taken off of many trust made article, and the income tax.

The measure, consequently, has a larger importance than that of a mere tariff reform bill, and its effect must be widespread, both on business and industry, and also in connection with politics. Democratic leaders are confident that business will suffer no untoward effect; that consumers will be benefited.

Changes in the Rates.
The bill imposes an average ad valorem rate of from 27 to 29 per cent. The average for the present Aldrich law is 40.12 per cent. The average for the Wilson-Gorman act was 23.45 per cent.

Duties generally have been reduced on all of the articles that enter into the necessities of life, including the products of the farm as well as manufactured products.

Trust made products in many cases have been transferred to the free list or the duties at present imposed have been substantially reduced.

The income tax feature of the bill is expected to net some $83,000,000. It will call for a tax on net incomes of unmarried persons of $3,000 and upwards and on net incomes of married persons living together, where the wife or husband is dependent, of $4,000 and upwards.

Experts' estimates indicate a surplus of $16,000,000 over all expenditures at the end of the present fiscal year.

A rate of 40 per cent. is imposed on stockings and half hose valued at not more than 70 cents a dozen pairs. For stockings between 70 and $1.20 a dozen pairs a duty of 40 per cent. was agreed upon.

The conferees eliminated the provision inserted by the senate denying entry into the American market of goods manufactured by children under 14 years of age.

The final agreement provided that any person employed to collect the income tax may be utilized by the secretary of the treasury in the general service of the internal revenue bureau.

Larger Customs Revenues.
"The customs revenues will be larger for the current year, 1914," Senator Simmons said, "because the rates of the Payne-Aldrich law have been for the force quarter, and will continue in force on wool and woolen goods until January 1, and on sugar until March 1. When the next fiscal year begins, July 1, 1914, all the rates of the new law will be in operation and the tariff duties collected will be smaller."

The income tax which is collected for the calendar year can be collected for only ten months of the present year, as the law specified that collection shall not go back of March 1, 1913. The estimated decrease in the total expenditures of the government for 1914, $5,000,000, is based on the fact that smaller expenditures are expected for the army and navy estimates.

The balance of the total estimates, as given in the treasury estimates, is made up of postal receipts, internal revenue receipts, the profits from public land sales, and other sources of federal income.

Agricultural Products and Provisions.
Cattle, sheep and other domestic animals suitable for use as food, wheat and wheat products and eggs, have been transferred to the free list. Reductions have been made on oats, butter, beets, frozen eggs, peas, greenhouse stock, zante currants, chocolate and cocoa sweetened and extracts of meats from the rates provided by the house. The rates have been increased over those provided by the house on broken rice, fish packed in oil and ground spices. A rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem is placed on ground spices in addition to the specific rate provided by the house on unground. The senate receded from the reduced rate placed on flaxseed and its amendment placing a duty on bananas. The house classification on lemons and other citrus fruits is accepted.

Schedule H, Spirits, Wines and Other.
No changes of importance are made in this schedule. The rates on ginger ale and similar beverages are slightly decreased on bottles containing not more than one-half pint each. The senate receded from its amendment placing an internal revenue tax on grape brandy used in fortifying sweet wines.

Papers and Books.
The house rates have been reduced on common paper, box, boards, papers partly covered with metal leaf or gelatine and plain basic papers for albumenizing, for photographic printing. The rates provided by the house for surface-coated papers suitable for covering boxes have been increased from 35 to 40 per cent. The senate amendments placing specific rates graduated according to thickness and size have been agreed to with several reductions in the rates provided. The rates agreed to are approximately equivalent to the ad valorem rates provided in the house bill. A specific rate has been placed on lithographic views of scenes and buildings located in the United States instead of the ad valorem rate provided by the house. This amendment results in an increase in the rate of duty.

Roman, Portland and other hydraulic cements, limestone, rock asphalt, asphaltum, and bitumen have been transferred to the free list. The house rates have been reduced on lenses, surveying instruments, telescopes, microscopes, photographic and projection lenses, in increased on strips of glass for lenses and gauges, opera and field glasses. A new classification has been made for unmanufactured mica and a rate of 4 cents per pound placed on all valued at not more than 15 cents per pound, and 25 per cent. on that valued at more than 15 cents. This results in an increase over the house rate of 30 per cent. on the cheap glass of mica, costing less than 14 cents, and a reduction of all that is valued at more than 15 cents per pound.

Cotton Manufactures.
The senate classification of cotton cloth, according to the average number of the yarns contained therein, was accepted. Instead of the house provision for the highest number. This slightly decreases the rate of some fancy weaves and novelty cloth, but on the greater bulk of cotton cloth the rate is not affected. The rates on bleached and dyed colored yarns are increased and on cotton yarns and cloth made of yarn, from numbers 79 to 59. The rates on handkerchiefs or muffers, not hemmed, have been reduced from 30 per cent., as provided by the house, to 25 per cent.

WORK DONE IN CONFERENCE

Alterations That Were Made From the Original Underwood Bill Passed by House.

A summary of the agreements informally announced from day to day during the conference work shows in comprehensive manner the following important alterations of the original Underwood bill:

The tax rate on incomes of more than $75,000 was increased by a graduated scale from three per cent. to seven per cent., and the exemption reduced from $4,000 to $3,000 for single persons. The new provision allowing a $4,000 exemption for a married person provides "that only one deduction of $4,000 shall be made from the aggregate income of both husband and wife when living together."

Articles added to the free list include pig iron, ferro manganese ore, cheap grades of iron; cattle and other food animals; wheat, flour, flax, hemp, sugar refining machinery, school text books, sand blast machinery, indigo dyes, moving picture films, cement and asphalt.

Some Increases Made.

Increases from the house bill include: Angora wool and articles made from it. Silk ribbons and narrow fabrics from 40 to 45 per cent. Lithographic views of American scenes. Surface coated paper suitable for covering boxes, from 35 to 40 per cent. Many kinds of acids. Some kinds of paints.

A new classification for woolen stockings, gloves and mittens makes a reduction from the house rate on those valued at less than $1.30 a dozen and an increase on those above.

Reductions from the house rates include:

Common paper boxboards. Papers used for photographic prints. Wearing apparel made of cattle or goat skins. Fur hats. Rough forms of dog and goat skins. Camel's hair press cloth for use in cotton oil mills. Cotton stockings and half hose. Perfumed and medicated soaps. Crude chicle. Lined oil. Chlorate of potash. High-power lenses, surveying instruments, telescopes and the like. Oats. Butter. Beets and other vegetables. Extracts of meat. Currants. Chocolate.

House Rates Changed.
Through a reclassification rates will be slightly reduced from those fixed by the house on fancy grades of cotton cloth.

The tariff on automobiles, fixed by the house at 45 per cent. and radically cut by the senate, was compromised by making a new classification of automobiles valued at less than $2,000, for which a rate of 30 per cent. was fixed.

The 5 per cent. rebate in tariff made by the house bill on goods brought in American ships was retained with the added provision that it should not "be so construed as to abrogate or in any manner impair or affect the provisions of any treaty" the United States has.

That portion of the house bill requiring foreign manufacturers or exporters to submit their books to American custom agents was amended so that if the exporter refused to allow such examination an additional duty of 15 per cent. ad valorem can be imposed on his exports.

Section 8 of the Cuban reciprocity treaty, which provides that Cuba should have a preferential rate of 20 per cent. on sugar and that the general tariff of the United States should not be reduced below the figures of the Dingley tariff law of 1897, is repealed.

SEES SOME GOOD IN CURRENCY BILL

Frank A. Vanderlip.

Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York, appearing before the senate banking committee, criticized adversely certain points of the pending currency bill, notably the independence of the regional reserve banks, the character of the note issue plan and the section compelling all national banks to become members of the proposed system.

He found many excellent qualities in the administration plan, however, and declared that a repetition of the panic of 1907 from such causes as brought it about would be impossible under the proposed banking system.

As to Football.
There has been remarkable improvement in football during the past few years. It still remains a superb training although there are too many chances for the "put him out of business" style of play. Too frequently a man's knees connect with the other fellow's stomach. The array of substitutes suggests a feeling that casualties are a necessary part of the game. If they were comprehensively scored, they might be regarded as like sacrifice hits at baseball. ## PANAMA CANAL WAS DE LESSEPS' DREAM

Ferdinand De Lesseps.

When the Panama canal is opened to the commerce of the world the second of the great dreams of Ferdinand de Lesseps, French engineer, will have become a fact. The first of the de Lesseps dreams—the Suez canal—has been an accomplished fact for fifty years. Upon the second he broke his reputation and his heart. After he had successfully dug the Suez canal, de Lesseps tried to dig a canal in Panama and failed disastrously.

EVER NOTICE THIS ABOUT THE CANAL?

It has been a good many years since the Panama canal was first talked about, and quite a few since the digging commenced. And yet a great many people can't say, and just what its general direction is. Many think it is east and west. The truth is, however, as the map shows, that the canal runs in a northerly and southeasterly direction.

Don't hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a responsible today often saves a sick child tomorrow. If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue's coated. This is a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

Real Contest.
For a real scientific contest of conversational endurance, just introduce a woman fresh from the hospital to a man with a new automobile.—Duluth Herald.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

The cook stove consumes coal and gas with visible reluctance. It is harder to start than an automobile. When it starts, it coughs and splutters. It thinks he is abused because it sits in the kitchen and rests while he toils at the crank in front stove and melts his collar and the surrounding room work with his rage. It is not used and begins to get rusty in the last ten years, whereas women have been starting cook stoves in one form or another since the world began.

The cook stove is mild and delicate in the winter, and often refuses to start at all. When the thermometer is 30 below nothing can be done.

Women may not be mentally capable of wiping their tired hands and leaning down to the polls twice a year, but the wonderful things on the cook stove, the wonderful things under woman's guiding genius, has made millions of men contented and fat. It has also made millions of men the world's principal supporters of reform because after a woman has come to know a cook stove inside and out, and summer and winter, she has a fear of extreme sultriness of future punishment cannot be obtained by a mere man.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat
BY RUTH CAMERON

LARGE VERSUS SMALL FAMILY.

A BELATED letter on the much discussed subject of the large versus the small family has come to me. I am passing it on to you, not because it shows what a wonderful, worthwhile thing a brave man and woman can make out of life, in spite of the handicap of financial stringency. I just can't keep still any longer about big families, for I think I have a right to say my say. Just this morning a young stranger asked to use our phone. After using it, he said, "How many children have you, anyway?" I said, "Nine." He said, "My, how old are you, anyway, twenty-one?" "No, forty," I said. He said, "Gee, if you'd put on your glad rags, you could easily pass for twenty-one." I said, "I have more than once." I have very often been taken for one of my daughters. My husband and I were married when we were seventeen and nineteen. I know that life is what we make it. I could have been and possibly would have been a sour old drudge if it had not been for my little daughter waking me up. When I had four, my husband had taken the two older girls to a big church and when they came home, the second one, barely four years old, said, "Oh Mama, it looks so funny to go down town and see all the pretty ladies all dressed up and come home and find an old Mama in an old wrapper." I was only twenty-two. I had a good cry but had sense enough to get out of wrappers and be a "pretty lady" for the rest of my life. My children are all refined and I am proud to take them anywhere. I have often been told by friends who have only one or two, that if they can raise theirs to be as nice as mine they will be satisfied. Isn't that worth all the work and study I have put into them?

We are a co-operative family doing all our work without help. I have always let my little ones help, even letting the girls wash dishes at sixteen months. Our boys are learning to cook and do housework as well as the girls, so they will be good husbands. (It was impossible to condense this letter into one column space, but I feel sure you will agree with me it deserves two. A finer each time I read it over I am so touched and so proud of belonging to the splendid middle class which produced such people, that a lump rises in my throat.)

BEST JUDGE OF MERIT

"The people are the best judges of merit," said Poor Richard. For nearly forty years women have been buying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; they keep on buying it, and they will continue to buy it just as long as it proves such a wonderful success in curing female ills. Endless quantities of roots and herbs are used annually in making this good old-fashioned remedy and the test of time has proved its merit. Advertisement.

GUGGENHEIM CASE

Mrs. Guggenheim tried last winter to have her divorce set aside on a fraud charge. One Chicago and two New York attorneys are charged by her with having secured the alleged "fake" divorce.

SOME PRETTY SUMMER SALADS.

A pretty and unusual salad is made by using a shapely cucumber for the salad dish. Cut a slice from the side to make a stable dish, then cut an oblong from the cucumber, using the pieces removed and cut in dice with the diced pineapple and bits of broken nuts. Garnish the top with minced parsley, and place the cucumber on a lettuce leaf. The dressing used may be French, boiled or mayonnaise.

Another pretty way of serving cucumber is to peel it and pare in rounds, as one does an apple, keeping the pieces as long as possible. Wind in rose shape, place a center of a spoonful of yellow dressing, and one has a pretty flower on a lettuce leaf.

Cheese and Tomato Salad.—Arrange a cup of head lettuce and put a slice of ripe tomato on it. Then a round of well seasoned cottage cheese another slice of tomato and a small ball of cheese on top of that with a stuffed olive for a garnish.

Green Pepper and Cream Cheese Salad.—Cut green peppers in halves, remove the seeds and white pulp, and fill with seasoned cream cheese which has been softened with cream and seasoned with a bit of chopped chives. The peppers may be served whole if small, or cut in slices after being thoroughly chilled. The slice will be the white cheese with a rim of the pretty green or red of the pepper.

Tomato and Pineapple Salad.—Peel a firm, shapely tomato and cut it in eighths, keeping it together at the blossom end. Open out like a flower, arrange on lettuce and fill the center with chopped pineapple and celery. Add the dressing just before serving. Slices of red radish placed in overlapping slices with a bit of chopped onion on lettuce leaves with French dressing makes a most dainty salad.

Woman's Important Position.

Miss Hallie M. Daggett, said to be the first woman in the United States appointed to the position of lookout at a forest reserve station, lives in Siskiyou county, California. She has been placed in charge of Eddy's Gulch lookout, situated on a peak of the Salmon Alps, 6,000 feet high. Her duty is to keep a lookout for fires and report to the nearest forest station.

"Did you mail that letter I gave you this morning?" asked Mrs. Howitzer. "I did!" simply replied Mr. H., and the parrot fell off his perch in astonishment.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People
By FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

Have you read the life of St. Francis of Assisi? It is a singularly beautiful narrative that does one good to read in this age of material things and money madness. Francis was a rich young man who left all to gain his own soul. Francis was the sort of man who today would be called, by the too sophisticated mortals of this age, a fanatic and a fool, but who enriched it as material things cannot enrich. The spirit of this man's love for all nature, for the dumb animals, the birds and the flowers, brings a benediction in the simple pleasure of knowing him as a familiar friend.

A study of his life gives one an interesting picture of the life and ways of men 700 years ago; it also brings to view the soul of a man of singular simplicity, the exact reverse to the soul of today's complicated existence, burdened and burdening. The world changes with the rising and setting of the sun, and this is not like St. Francis, for he was the needs of this time like the needs of his time. Yet we all can learn a lesson from him, and to read his life makes one love the hero for his virtues of faith and humility, his kinship with all creation.

CHRONIC COLDS

Are Contracted by Changeable Weather. A Simple Remedy.

Sudden changes are particularly trying for old people or those who suffer from a weakened run-down condition, chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis, but if such persons would only apply common sense methods in the treatment of their condition, much discomfort and suffering might be avoided.

The most essential thing to do is to build up strength, enrich the blood, increase vital resistance and to accomplish this nothing equals Vinol, our cod liver and iron tonic.

Mrs. M. J. Grimes of Springfield, Ohio, says: "I was badly run-down, nervous and weak, and while in this condition I contracted a heavy cold and rheumatism. Vinol was recommended and I am happy to say it cured my cold and restored me to health again."

Old people, delicate children, run-down, over-worked and tired women, those suffering from bronchitis, chronic coughs and colds should try a bottle of Vinol. We will return your money if it does not help you. Smith Drug Co., druggists, Janesville, Wis.

Things Worth Knowing.

Combs will soon warp and break if washed with water. They should be cleaned with a good, stiff, dry toothbrush or nailbrush.

A better iron rest than the ordinary metal stand is a firebrick, as it does not cool the iron so rapidly.

To keep an empty cask sweet be sure and have it barked up tight.

Painted cages are bad for birds, as the birds are sure to pick off the paint and it will slowly poison them.

The Table.

Baked Eggs in Tomatoes.—Remove a thin slice from the stem end of each tomato, remove seeds and pulp and drain liquid; break a fresh egg into each tomato, season, place in a buttered dish, cover and bake.

Rich Brown Soup.—Soak over night a pint of peas; put peas into boiling water, let them simmer until water has nearly boiled away; rub through a colander to remove tough skin; add a cup of boiling water, one cup of mashed potato, two cups of stewed and strained tomato and one cup of thick cream; cook in a double boiler thirty minutes.

Bernaise Sauce.—Chop fine enough milk onion to make two tablespoonfuls; add a slice of green pepper, chopped fine, and one-fourth a cup of vinegar; let stand on the shelf of the range about half an hour, then strain through a piece of cheesecloth, pressing out all the juice; meanwhile add the beaten yolks of three eggs and a tablespoonful of butter; set over hot water and stir constantly, while adding the strained mixture, until half a cup in all has been added. Finish with a tablespoonful of parsley, chopped exceedingly fine and wrung dry in a cloth. If the parsley be not fine, it will clog the pipe when the sauce is set in place.

Baked Quinces.—Wash and core small quinces and fill the core-cavities with granulated sugar. Arrange them in a buttered baking dish and pour water around them. Cover them closely and let them cook slowly for about an hour.

When they are almost done remove the cover and cook a little more rapidly. Then remove the quinces and reduce the syrup in which they were cooked by boiling it rapidly for a few minutes pour it over them and chill them. Serve with a tablespoonful of whipped cream on top of each.

Quince Chips.—Pare quarter, core and slice the quinces. Weigh them and alloy a pound of sugar for every pound of fruit. Cover the fruit with water in a porcelain kettle with the sugar. Add half a cup of water. Melt and dissolve the sugar slowly and cook it till the fruit is red and transparent. Lift the pieces of the liquid carefully with a skimmer and dry them on a sieve. Roll them in sugar and use them as "sweet-meats."

Cake.—One cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, six eggs, two cupfuls of flour, one heaping teaspoonful of caraway seeds, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract, and one teaspoonful of orange extract. Beat the butter and sugar till creamy, then add the yolks of the eggs well beaten. Gradually stir in the flour, caraway seeds, vanilla extract, orange extract and salt. Beat up the whites of the eggs until stiff, then fold them in gradually and lightly. Put the mixture into a buttered and papered tin and bake in a moderate oven for fifty minutes.

Domestic Science Department.

Does this sound like too much trouble for the woman who does her own cooking and housework? I hope there are always some members of the family who are ready to share this waiting on table and service with the mistress of the home. As I never lose sight of the fact that about 90 per cent of the women in this country do their own work, I realize how every step counts, and the weariness of one who has prepared the meal by the time everything is cooked and on the table. But even so, with other conditions equal, there is never a meal well cooked and served that does not add immediate pleasure and comfort to every member of the family.

Do not imagine desserts should be elaborate or expensive, but they should appeal to the eye and esthetic taste more than any other part of the meal. It's the final touch and finish, and if carelessly done is very apt to spoil the effect of an entire dinner. We are beginning to look at food products in their right relation, knowing just what each one can do toward building and repairing or furnishing heat and energy. Realizing the part that sugar and which some sweets play in the dessert it is no longer considered a luxury, but a necessity.

Brown Betty.

Material.—Breadcrumbs, one cup; sugar, one-half cup; chopped tart apples, two cups; chopped raisins, one cup; cinnamon, one teaspoonful; butter, two tablespoonfuls.

Directions.—Butter well a deep pudding dish and put in a layer of apples and raisins, a sprinkle of sugar, spice and breadcrumbs and a few bits of butter. Repeat until all the materials are used, having the last layer crumbs and bits of butter, cover and brown. Serve hot or cold with cream or a lemon sauce. This is nice served from the baking dish at the table.

HEART-
HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am nineteen years of age. Am I too young to have a beau?

(2) A few weeks ago my friend and myself met two gentlemen. They escorted us home and made a date, but did not keep it. In your opinion, are they gentlemen?

(3) Does talcum powder or orris root powder prevent the growth of the hair?

(4) Couldn't you give me a recipe to keep the hair dry and fluffy? My hair is so oily.

SWEET MARIE.

(1) No.

(2) They were not gentlemen.

(3) Constant use of powders is not good for the hair.

(4) Give it an egg shampoo every two weeks and brush it dry. Rub daily into the scalp the following mixture: Two ounces alcohol, two ounces witch hazel and fourteen grains resorcin.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is a girl fifteen years old too young to use powder?

(2) I have a boy friend my age who would like to take me to the show. Am I too young to go with him if he is on proper time?

(3) Will you please give me a recipe how to make molasses candy and fudge.

(4) Your complexion should be so fresh and pretty that your age that powder would only spoil it. Don't use it, my dear. Be sweet and whole: some and keep clean and beautiful the skin the Lord gave you.

(5) If your parents do not object I see no harm in it.

(6) Molasses Candy.—One cup white sugar, one tablespoonful butter, one tablespoonful vinegar, one small teaspoonful soda, two cups New Orleans molasses. Boil, fast, twenty minutes, stirring all the time. Cool in shallow pans, then pull.

Fudge.—Two cups light brown sugar, three-quarters cup milk; boil together and when partly done add butter size of walnut. Boil until it forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Beat well until stiff. Can add nuts or cocoanut if liked.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of fourteen and have come to the conclusion that I want to make my own spending money.

I have been reading of a girl in California who's making large sums of money by selling butterflies, moths and caterpillars. I live in the mountains myself, but I don't think so very many of those insects can be caught here—I only live a few miles from Tuscaloosa.

sugar22, sercin-rootipol, m mr m But I certainly would appreciate it if you will only tell me some way to make my own spending money. for I know I would just love to spend my very own money and not ask papa and mamma to give it to me. They don't know I am writing to you. I want to learn first how to make my spending money.

BROWN EYES.

It is commendable of you to wish to earn your own spending money, my dear, but I am afraid you are a little too young to undertake much in that line. You see, your education may not be finished yet, and also you ought to help mother in the household duties, etc. In that way you would earn the spending money that father gives you. But you might be able to do something to bring a little money if there is one thing you can do better than anybody else. Think it over. Perhaps you can make candy, or cookies, or cake or bread, or maybe you can sew.

COMPLETE A SURVEY
GREEN LAKE MOUNDS

Halvor L. Skavlem of This City Member of Investigating Party of State Archeological Society.

Halvor L. Skavlem has returned from Green Lake, Wis., where he has been engaged with a party of investigators of the Wisconsin Archeological Society in conducting a surface survey of the surface antiquities of that region. Other members of the party were: Lee R. Whitney, Milwaukee; Towne L. Miller, Ripon; and Charles E. Browne, Madison. S. D. Mitchell of Green Lake and George Pasco of Ripon, accompanied the party during some of their field work.

Nearly every foot of the shore line of Green Lake was investigated and many discoveries of interest and importance to the society were made. Accurate plans and descriptions of the mound groups and workshop sites, provision caches, plots of Indian corn hills and garden beds, source of chert and other stone used by the early Indians, were prepared.

Mr. Skavlem reports that mound groups at Terrace Beach, Forest Glen, Sugar Loaf, and other points about the lake and its tributary streams, proved of great interest to the investigators who did much to encourage the restoration and permanent preservation by property owners of many fine mounds which heretofore have been shamelessly mutilated by curious relic hunters.

The prevailing effigy type of the Green Lake region is that known to the archeologists as the "pawther". A few other animal types are also represented.

During their week's work the party made its headquarters at Mr. Miller's cottage at Como bay. While there Mr. Skavlem won an original investigator, gave frequent demonstrations of his expert knowledge of the methods employed by the American Indian in former days in the making of flint and stone implements. Using the same tools that the Indians had at their disposal, he is able to duplicate any of their artifacts.

The society will publish an illustrated report on the Green Lake survey, similar to the ones which have been prepared of the Lakes Koshkonong, Sauk, Winnebago and Racine county regions.

An interesting ceremony which took place at Mr. Towne's cottage was a dedication of the memory of Rev. Stephen D. Post, a pioneer Wisconsin antiquarian, of an inscribed boulder, supposed to be the work of Mark R. Harrison, the noted pioneer artist of Fond du Lac.

This interesting stone is described by Rev. Post in his notes of the Green Lake antiquities. The stone was recently acquired by Mr. Miller, who has placed it upon a cement pedestal on his lawn. The dedication address was given by Charles E. Brown, secretary of the archeological society, Miss Margaret Welcome of Topeka, Kansas, did the unveiling. Mr. Skavlem and Mr. Whitney also gave brief addresses at the exercises.

Tell me not in mournful numbers
Life is but an empty dream, for that

NEW PSALM OF LIFE

AUTO TURNS TURTLE;

Five Men Narrowly Escape Death
When Machine Rolls Into Ditch
Sunday Afternoon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cainville Center, Oct. 13.—Five
Magnolia men escaped death Sunday afternoon when the automobile, owned and driven by Will Levow, skidded and turned turtle on the Magnolia road in front of the Herman Felck farm. The machine was traveling at a rate of twenty-five miles an hour
when the accident occurred. Mr. Levow, who was most seriously injured,
was taken to his home by Dr. Lacey who was summoned from Footville.

An examination revealed no broken bones but it is thought that he is suffering from severe internal injuries.

Walter Thompson, Roy Troon, Arthur and Lyle Wells, were the other men in the car. Two of them were knocked unconscious but recovered immediately with nothing worse than bruises.

SECRET OF ETERNAL LIFE IS IN CHRIST

THE REV. C. L. THOMPSON DELIVERS ILLUMINATING SERMON ON TOPIC.

BIBLE THE COMPASS

Little or No Light on Future Existence to be Obtained from Any Other Sources.

"If you want eternal life, you will not get it alone by joining the church, but by going to the school of Christ in which God is revealed, and any studying him as a companion" was the message of Dr. Charles L. Thompson, a former pastor in this city and one of the foremost Presbyterian ministers in the United States given at the Sunday morning service at the First Presbyterian church on the subject of "Eternal Life."

In opening his sermon, Dr. Thompson said that the chords of memory were vibrating strongly for his former friends in this city and it was rather a pathetic pleasure to speak before the church because of the halo that the years have brought among his Janesville friends and the great company moving to the world beyond. "My friends, this is not our home; the current of the year takes many of us with it, and as I look around, I see only a few of the members of my former church and nothing impresses stronger than the great truth, that there is an eternal life," was the manner in which Rev. Thompson approached the subject.

"The question of eternal life has been the supreme problem in the history of Christian religion, even to the jungles of Africa, in the great cathedrals, among the savages and even in the temple of Jerusalem. Of this life we are now living we know its tears, sorrows, blessing and happiness, but what are we to find beyond it? Eye as sense has not discovered it, science even after untiring efforts has failed to shed any light upon life after death. Eternal life is certain, for the infinite powers would not build up life to fight the battle of the modern age, only to cut it short within a few years. In our lives here we have our grave troubles, dangers, and sorrows and there must be some place where they shall be balanced up."

Le Vore, the great astronomer, found that the heavenly bodies were unbalanced and figured that there should be a missing comet. By various methods he found the position that the body should be in but his telescope failed to reveal it, turning, he instructed a famous German astronomer to turn his more powerful glass upon the heavens on a certain night, a certain minute and at a certain angle, and a new planet was discovered. We have no glass or science to show our new world, nothing comes of research, but experience tell us that the world is there. The only glass that we have is the Bible. Slit along this, and by its truths and teachings you will discover our new world."

"What is eternal life? Not merely existing, as if to abolish death and go on living forever and ever, for that is eternal existence. We say that the gods exist for they stand staunch and firm, throwing off rain and the elements, but a vice growing by the side, lives for its absorbent from nature and grows more beautiful and full of life. Eternal existence are two separate things. Eternal life, if there would be pleasure in eternal life, for one to go on existing for day after day, year after year, century after century, becoming bent, shrunken with the wrinkles of age, until life becomes intolerable, bearing the same burdens daily."

"It is not to be regretted that death comes sometime in our lives, for that the life of this spirit which enables us to reach heaven and win victories is gone, it is time to go. Herbert Spencer says that eternal life is correspondence with God; for he knows your force and gives you eternal life. To think that the world beyond gives you steady support."

"Life eternal is to know God, correspond with him, taking from him his blessing, the same as the plant draws vital from the soil, and to build yourself for the life immortal."

"If you know God, you will never die. You must know him, not as you understand geometrical problems, but to know him as a friend, as a boy knows his parents, a child knows a mother, to interest yourself in his teachings and obey them. Motherly love follows through life and she always is the same mother during life, after passing over the River. Tell God your troubles, your sins, and treat him as a companion."

"How are we to know? God sent his Son to reveal him to us, and gave the Bible as a link between us and eternal life." In the third chapter, seventeenth verse of St. John it says, "For God sent his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. If we are attuned to His ideas, going to heaven may not be the blessing that we think, for correspondence with him during our life, he prepared us for the eternal life. For instance a person climbing Pike's Peak will be overcome by the rare atmosphere, and those who may be Christians, but do not confide with Christ, may find it hard breathing."

"There is an open door between now and then, and it is only a swinging door if we have lived according to His laws and rules. Learn to love and correspond with God while living. There are no courses or regulations, not that the teaching that Christ has given us in the Bible for eternal life and if we follow those, we will find every day life more glorious and a clear vision of the world beyond. Your life is the test and with Christ as a teacher and God as a friend, eternal life is solved."

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, Oct. 13.—C. M. Benscoter of Brodhead was a caller in the village between morning trains on Saturday.

George Fankhurst who has been spending the greater part of the week at Fond du Lac, and other upstate towns returned home on Friday evening.

Mrs. Chas. Garbutt of Janesville, visited in Orfordville Saturday.

She was the guest of Mr. Garbutt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Garbutt.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Taylor entertained on Saturday, in honor of Mrs. Garbutt, the occasion being her birthday.

Fred Bartling and Fred Cole returned on Saturday morning from a trip in the northern part of the state, in quest of deer. They doubtless obtained their quota of that commodity.

Rev. W. C. Sainsbury and wife and their baby girl, went to Chicago on Saturday morning and will take the little one to Wesley hospital. The mother has been in poor health for some time and local medical treatment seemed of no avail. They were accompanied by Dr. S. W. Forbush.

People in Orfordville watched the on-coming storm on Friday evening with a good deal of apprehension. Thoughts of two years ago the 11th of November, 1911, were fresh in their minds and it cannot be wondered at that they felt somewhat uneasy at the appearance of the clouds. The storm, however, passed over without either severe wind or lightning.

A traveling "Booster" has been in Orfordville for the past day or two, and on Saturday evening, gave a talk on the streets that was full of good suggestions, and was well received. The burden of his address was "If you want your town to flourish, and cut some figure, do your trading at home; Eat, Push and Boost for your own Town."

Word was received in Orfordville, on Saturday, that the storm that occurred at about four o'clock on Friday afternoon had assumed the form of a tornado, a few miles south of the village and that in the town of Newark, in the Naugle neighborhood, trees were uprooted, wind-mills blown down and tobacco sheds demolished. No estimate of the damage has been reported.

CLINTON

Clinton, Oct. 13.—The Dry Milk company of this place shipped 225 cans of milk powder to one customer at Los Angeles, California, which is equal to 4500 cans of 10 gallons each of milk.

Solon and Hiram Cooper were in Janesville Wednesday on business.

Mrs. Tarrant of Janesville, was here Wednesday combining business with pleasure.

John Nitz' baby has been very sick, but is some better, and they hope the turn for the better has come.

MESDAMES A. J. BODEN AND W. H. CHEESMAN ENTERTAINED

"about 20 of their friends on Thursday evening. 500 was played at which Mrs. E. S. Duxstad won the first prize, delicious refreshments were served, and the event was one of the most enjoyable social events of the season. It was held at the home of Mrs. Boden on Duane street."

Clayton E. Stoney purchased a new auto of Terwilliger and Anderson.

M. M. Murray purchased a new touring car, the Little Six, of Terwilliger and Anderson.

Mrs. Harry Boomer and daughter, of Chicago, are visiting at the home of G. R. Crabtree.

Miss Sophia Knetting, who badly burned her hands in a gasoline stove fire, is getting along very nicely.

The report that burglars had entered the home of Andrew Holtman was unfounded.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Benner of Darlington motored out with a party of friends Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reimer are visiting relatives and friends in Rockford.

Miss Erdman went to Chicago, yesterday on a shopping expedition.

Mrs. John Lunum of Duluth, Minn., and Mrs. Will Verick and son, Herbert, of Rockford, are visiting their Mr. and Mrs. Sarah Pease of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Winn and daughter and Mrs. John Nitz, of Clinton, Ill., Friday morning, to attend a silver wedding.

About forty friends and neighbors of Mrs. E. G. Snyder very successfully and pleasantly surprised them at their home, two and a half miles east of town. The occasion being a sort of farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Snyder, who are to leave the farm and move to town. A sumptuous supper such as only the good folks of that neighborhood can get up, was served and a fine social time was enjoyed. The friends presented the surprised couple with some heavy sterling silver dessert spoons.

E. B. Mott and wife of Pratt, Kansas, are visiting his sister, Mrs. G. W.

Earle, Mr. Mott regardless of the drought raised about 7500 bushels of wheat and considerable oats, but corn was dried up and a failure.

Mrs. Chas. W. Mayo died Friday morning at her home on East Milwaukee street, after a lingering illness since August 1st. Jane E. How was born at Clinton, N. Y. Oct. 23, 1835, and moved to Wisconsin with her parents in 1855 and settled at Topping's Corners, south of Darien. She was married to J. W. Mayo, June 17, 1855, who survives her, besides four children, who are W. H. Mayo of Manawa, Wis., Chas. W. Mayo, and Mrs. F. A. Bird, and Mrs. Carrie Smith, Clinton.

A son Clarence, died several years ago in Iowa. Funeral was held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the late residence, interment at the beautiful Clinton cemetery. Mrs. Mayo was a home loving woman, a good mother and a good neighbor and was greatly beloved by neighbors and friends who knew her.

P. H. Woodward will occupy the rooms vacated by D. T. Borer.

Hans Hemmingson went to Racine, Friday for a week's vacation.

MILTON JUNCTION

Milton Junction, Oct. 13.—A big wind storm passed over the town Friday afternoon. It began about four o'clock and was accompanied by hail and a heavy rain. Persons on the streets and rigs stopped where they were, until it was over, as they could not see where to go. Trees and limbs blocked some of the highways.

Miss Florence and Anna Fox went to the Fort today, where they will visit relatives.

The Fortnightly club met with Mrs. George Coon yesterday afternoon.

Rev. Gordon was a Janesville caller yesterday.

Mrs. S. C. Chamber returned from Janesville today, where she has been visiting friends.

Miss Crall left last night for Leyden where she will spend the week end with her folks.

If Coffee
Don't Agree
Use
POSTUM

A prominent Philadelphia physician says:

"If, on discontinuing coffee, you feel tired, languid, and 'out of sorts,' the coffee had better be forever discontinued, for you are on the verge of inebriety."

Thousands of people have taken warning and proved that coffee was the cause of their headaches, biliousness and nervousness.

A great many former coffee drinkers, feeling the need of a hot drink with meals, now use

POSTUM

A rich, nourishing food-drink, with a delightful flavour much resembling high-grade Java. Postum is made from prime whole wheat, and a small percent of New Orleans molasses. Contains no caffeine or any other drug.

Postum comes in two forms.

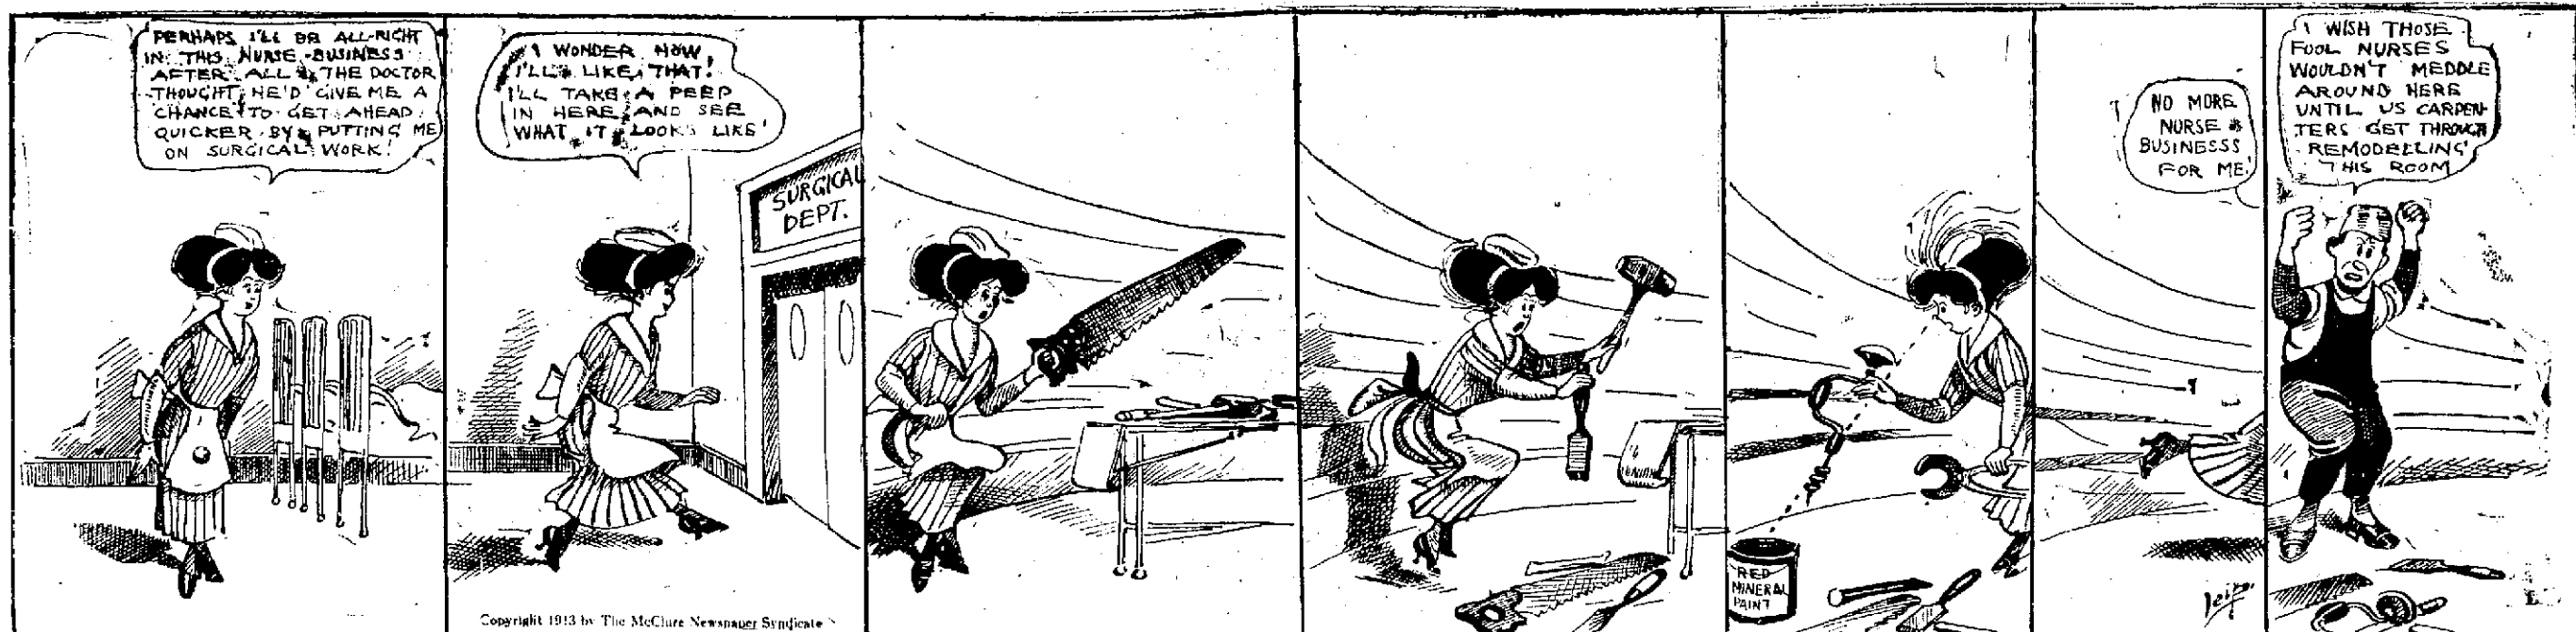

Regular Postum requires fifteen to twenty minutes boiling to bring out the rich flavour and food value.

Instant Postum requires no boiling, but is made instantly by stirring a teaspoonful of the soluble powder in a cup of hot water and adding cream and sugar to taste.

Drink it instead of Coffee.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets. These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "biliousness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Where There's A Will

By Mary Roberts Rinehart
Illustrated by Edgar Earl Smith

Copyright, 1913, The Bobbs-Merrill Company

He said that perfect health, clear skins, bright eyes—he looked at the women, and except for Miss Patty, there wasn't an honest complexion or a bright eye in the lot—keen appetites and joy of living all depended on rational and simple living. It was being done now in a thousand fresh-air farms, and succeeding. Men went back to their business clear-headed and women grew more beautiful.

At that, what with the reaction from sitting in the cold station, and the beer and everything, they all grew enthusiastic. Doctor Barnes made a speech telling that he used to be puny and weak, and how he went into training and became a pugilist, and how he'd fought the Tennessee something or other—the men nodded as if they knew—and looked him in 40 seconds or 40 rounds, I'm not sure which. The men were standing on their chairs cheering for him, and even Mr. Jennings, who'd been sitting and not saying much, said he thought probably there was something in it.

They ended by agreeing to try it out for a week, beginning with the morning, when everybody was to be down for breakfast by seven-thirty. Then somebody suggested that if they were to get up they'd have to go to bed, and the party broke up.

In a half-hour or so I had cleared away, and I went out to the lobby to look up the news stand. Just as I opened the door from the back hall, however, I heard two people talking. It was Miss Pat and Mr. Pierce. She was on the stairs and he in the hall below, looking up.

"I've Put Myself on Trial and Been Convicted."

"I don't want to stay!" she was saying.

"But, don't you see," he argued. "If you go, the others will. Can't you try it for a week? I'm told it's the best season and nobody else would come until Lent. And, anyhow, it's not business to let a lot of people go away mad. It gives the place a black eye."

"Dear me," she said, "how businesslike you are growing!"

He went over close to the stairs and dropped his voice.

"If you want the bitter truth," he went on, trying to smile, "I've put myself on trial and been convicted of being a fool and a failure. I've been going around so long trying to find a place that I fit into, that I'm scarred as with many battles. And now I'm on probation—for the last time. If this doesn't go, I—I—"

"What?" she asked, leaning down to him. "You'll not—"

"Oh, no," he said, "nothing dramatic of course. I could go around the country in a buggy selling lightning rods—"

She drew herself back as if she resented his refusal of her sympathy.

"Or open a saloon in the Philippines!" he finished mockingly.

"There's a living in that."

"You are impossible," she said, and turned away.

He watched her up the stairs and then turned and walked to the fire, with his hands in his pockets and his head down.

I closed the news stand and he came over just as I was hanging up the cigar case key for Amanda King in the morning. He reached up and took the key off its nail.

"I'll keep that," he said. "It's no tobacco after this, Minnie."

"You can't keep them here, then," I retorted. "They've got to smoke; it's the only work they do."

"We'll see," he said quietly. "And—oh, yes, Minnie, now that we shall not be using the mineral spring—"

"Not use the mineral spring!" I repeated, stupefied.

"Certainly not!" he said. "This is a drugless sanatorium, Minnie, from now on. That's part of the theory—no drugs. Listen, Minnie. If you hadn't been wasting your abilities in the mineral spring, I'd be sorry to close it. But there will be plenty for you to do."

"If we're not going to use the spring-house, we might have saved the expense of the new roof in the fall," I said bitterly.

"Not at all. For two hours or so a day the springhouse will be a rest-house—windows wide open and God's good air penetrating to fastnesses it never knew before."

"The spring will freeze!"

"Exactly. My only regret is that it is too small to skate on. But they'll have the ice pond."

"When I see Mr. Moody skating on the ice pond," I said sarcastically, "I'll see Mrs. Moody dead with the shock on the bank."

"Not at all," he replied calmly. "You'll see her skating, too." And with that he went to bed.

CHAPTER XII.

They took to it like ducks to water. Not, of course, that they didn't kick about making their own beds and having military discipline generally. They complained a lot, but when after three days went by with the railroad running as much on schedule as it ever does, they were all still there, and Mr. Jennings had limped out and spent a half-hour at the wood pile with his gouty foot on a cushion, I saw it was a success.

I ought to have been glad. I was, although when Mrs. Dicky found they were all staying, and that she might have to live in the shelter-house the rest of the winter, there was an awful scene. I was glad, too, every time I could see Mr. Thoburn's gloomy face, or hear the things he said when his name went up for the military walk.

The strange thing of all was the way they began to look up to Mr. Pierce. He was very strict; if he made a rule, it was obeyed or leave. (As they knew after Mr. Moody refused to take the military walk, and was presented with this bill and a railroad schedule within an hour. He had to take the military walk with Doctor Barnes that afternoon alone.) They had to respect a man who could do all the things in the gymnasium that they couldn't, and come in from ten or fifteen-mile tramp through the snow and take a cold plunge and a swim to rest himself.

It was on Monday that we really got things started, and on Monday afternoon Miss Summers came out to the shelter-house in a towering rage.

"Where's Mr. Pierce?" she demanded.

"I guess you can see he isn't here," I said.

"Just wait until I see him!" she announced. "Do you know that I am down at the blackboard for the military walk today?—"

"Why not?"

She turned and glared at me. "Why not?" she repeated. "Why, the audacity of the wretch! He brings me out into the country in winter to play in his atrocious play, strands me, and then tells me to walk twenty miles a day and smile over it!" She came over to me and shook my arm. "Not only that," she said, "but he has cut out my cigarettes and put Arabella on dog biscuit—Arabella, who can hardly eat a chicken wing."

"Well, there's something to be thankful for," I said. "He didn't put you on dog biscuit."

She laughed then, with one of her quick changes of humor.

"The worst of it is," she said, in a confidential whisper, "I'll do it. I feel it. I guess if the truth were known I'm some older than he is, but—I'm afraid of him, Minnie. Little Judy is ready to crawl around and speak for a cracker or a kind word. Oh, I'm not in love with him, but he's got the courage to say what he means and do what he says."

She went to the door and looked back smiling.

"I'm off for the wood-pile," she called back. "And I've promised to chop two inches off my heels."

As I say, they took to it like ducks to water—except two of them, von Jawald and Thoburn. Mr. von Jawald stayed on, I hardly know why, but I guess it was because Mr. Jennings still hadn't done anything final about settlements, and with the newspapers marrying him every day it wasn't very comfortable. Next to him, Mr. Thoburn was the unhappiest mortal I have ever seen.

Doctor Barnes came out that afternoon and watched me while I closed the windows. He had a package in his hand. He sat on the railing of the spring and looked at me.

"You're not warmly enough dressed for this kind of thing," he remarked. "Where's that gray rabbits' fur, or whatever it is?"

"If you mean my chinchillas," I said, "they're in their box. Chinchillas are as delicate as babies and not near so plentiful. I'm warm enough."

"You look it." He reached over and caught one of my hands. "Look at that! Blue nails! It's about four degrees above zero here, and while the rest are wrapped in furs and steamers, you've got on a shawl. I'll bet you two dollars you haven't got on any—er—winter flannels."

"I never bet," I retorted, and went on folding up the steamer rug.

"I'd like to help," he said, "but you're so darned capable, Miss Minnie—"

"You might see if you can get the slot-machine empty," I said. "It's full of water. It wouldn't work and Mr. Moody thought it was frozen. He's been carrying out-boiling water all afternoon. If it stays in there and freezes the thing will explode."

He wasn't listening. He'd been fussing with his package and now he opened it and handed it to me, in the paper.

"Never Bet," I Retorted.

"It's a sweater," he said, not looking at me. "I bought it for myself and it was too small—Confound it, Minnie, I wish I could lie! I bought them for you! There's the whole business—sweater, cap, leggings and mittens. Go on! Throw them at me!"

But I didn't. I looked at them, all white and soft, and it came over me suddenly how kind people had been lately, and how much I'd been getting—the old doctor's waistcoat buttons and Miss Pat's furs, and now this! I just buried my face in them and cried.

Doctor Barnes stood by and said nothing. Some men wouldn't have understood, but he did. After a minute or so he came over and pulled the sweater out from the bundle.

"I'm glad you like 'em," he said, "but as I bought them at Hubbard's, in Pinleyville, and as the old liar guaranteed they wouldn't shrink, we'd better not cry on 'em."

Well, I put them on and I was warmer and happier than I had been for some time. But that night when I went out to the shelter-house with the supper basket I found both the nonsensical in a wild state of excitement. They said that about five o'clock Thoburn had gone out to the shelter-house and walked all around it. Finally he had stopped at one of the windows of the other room, had worked at it with his penknife and got it open, and crawled through. They sat paralyzed with fright, and heard him moving around the other room, and he even tried their door. But it had been locked.

By Friday of that week you would hardly have known any of them. The fat ones were thinner and the thin ones fatter, and Miss Julia Summers could put her whole hand inside her belt.

And they were pleasant. They'd sit down to a supper of ham and egg and apple sauce, and yell for more.

They fussed some still about sleeping with the windows open, especially the bald-headed men.

Mr. von Jawald was still there, and not troubling himself to be agreeable to any but the Jennings family. He and Mr. Pierce carefully avoided each other, but I knew well enough that only policy kept them apart. Both of them, you see, were working for something.

Miss Cobb came to the springhouse early Friday morning, and from the way she came in and shut the door I knew she had something on her mind. She walked over to where I was polishing the brass railing around the spring—it had been the habit of years, and not easy to break—and stood looking at me and breathing hard.

"Minnie," she exclaimed, "I have found the thief!"

"Lord have mercy!" I said, and dropped the brass polish.

"I have found the thief!" she repeated firmly. "Minnie, our sins are sins and our sins are sins."

"I guess they do," I said shakily, and sat down on the steps to the spring. "Oh, Miss Cobb, if only he would use a little bit of sense!"

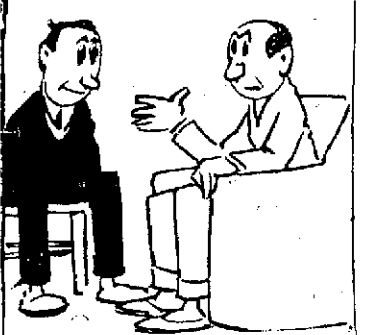

"He?" she said. "He nothing! It's that Summers woman! I'm talking about Minnie. I know that woman wasn't what she ought to be the minute I set eyes on her."

Dinner Stories

The amateur adventurer had just returned from stirring scenes in Mexico, where he had fought under the banners of the revolutionists. He had come home wounded and was telling his friend about it.

"It was my first engagement, you know. The bullet struck me just under the heart."

"And you lived? How remarkable!"

"Oh no; not at all. You see, my heart was in my mouth at the time."

An organist had drawn up the order of a Sunday service, and it was in type ready for printing when the death of an important personage made a change necessary. The organist telephoned to the printer and instructed him to change the postlude to "Funeral March by Chopin."

This is what he found at the end of the list when he arrived at the church: "A few remarks by Chopin."

"Why, when we was up the Amazon," said the loquacious sailor, "the mosquitoes was terrible. They used to roost on the leaves and bark—"

"Come, come," remonstrated one of his audience, "you can't expect

That Little Spot On Your Skin; Beware, Beware!

Because—the smallest spot of infection means danger. That blotch on your arm, that itchy place on your leg, beware lest soon it spread, covering breast, face, body.

Because—the curse of skin disease is growing. It is estimated that millions of our people are infected and spreading the disease.

Because—unlike the established doubt in regard to Dr. Friedman's experiments with the "Great White Plague" the research work in the D. D. D. Laboratory, Chicago, has proven definitely that D. D. D. Prescription is a specific that cures skin and scalp disease.

Your own druggist will recommend this soothing, cooling liquid.

If you come to us for the famous prescription and the efficient D. D. D. Skin Soap, we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to reach your case. You alone to judge.

J. P. Baker & Son, Druggists, Janesville, Wis.

D. D. D. Prescription—for 15 years—the standard skin remedy.

Resinol a safe skin-treatment

YOU need never hesitate to use Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. There is nothing in them to injure the tenderest surface. Resinol is a doctor's prescription which for eighteen years has been used by careful physicians for all kinds of itching, burning, unsightly skin affections. They prescribe Resinol freely, confident that its soothing, healing action is brought about by medication so bland and gentle as to be suited to the most delicate skin—even of a tiny baby.

Sold by all druggists. For free trial, write to Dept. 23-M, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

The Auto-Biography of a Want Ad.

I was called into existence to meet the want of a house-owner that was seeking for a desirable tenant for part of his home.

As he would rather have the house empty than not procure a good tenant he was careful how he clothed me (with words) so as to convey this idea to the public without offense.

To say "For Rent—a house," wouldn't do at all, to say "House for Rent" was equally vague. He knew what he wanted, but to let the public know he must be rather explicit, not afraid to express his ideas in words. Consequently he made of me a "Want Ad" of fourteen lines, not the "three lines, three times" kind. I was a grown-up want ad. I said all he wanted to tell concerning his house, spoke of references, told his want explicitly.

The result was that I was kept in the paper five nights and brought in all just 47 answers to the man's call for a desirable tenant. Now 47 people to answer one ad is some business; the man almost decided to enter the Real Estate business so fast the people followed in the wake of my insertion.

The place could have been rented the very first day, but this man had always read the want ads and was "from Missouri" about the results being as good as the paper claimed. As the days wore on—he almost wore out—taking people through the place; but he was game. He wanted to be shown—he was.

Want Ads that were in the same night he first inserted me are still running because they did not tell ANYTHING about the house. I am in the discard, but I am listed as a successful result getter—for better than a failure.

Now gentle reader you are—of course—looking for the moral? If you have a want, no matter what, if it be legitimate, it can be satisfied if you know HOW to write up your Ad.

To spend more than 25 cents for an Ad is not rank extravagance, rather it is—eventually—a good investment. Describe your place, your furniture or whatever your want embraces. It pays; it pays well.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a poorly worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper, and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to its office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.
